FBI Investigating Blaze at Dominion

WAR PRODUCTS IMPERILED BY SUDDEN FIRE

Firemen Fight Three Hours To Subdue Flames in Plant Doing War Work.

STARTS IN PAINT ROOM

Police Sabotage Squad, Federal Agents Seek Origin of Mysterious Fire.

Federal Bureau of Investigation agents today began an investigation of a mysterious fire which early this morning gutted the paint room of the Dominion Electrical Manufacturing company, engaged in munitions production, causing damage which plant officials say will run "well into the thousands."

Battling for three hours, firemen from Central and No. 2 stations finally overcame the stubborn blaze which started, paint room employes said, with a brilliant flash immediately followed by flames at 1:15 a. m.

No explosion was heard, the seven workmen in the department said, but the fire spread was rapid as sparks ignited open tanks of naptha, a highly explosive fluid—if sealed—which is constantly in use in the department.

Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger and Captains Leo T. Saltzgaber and Ralph J. Shively were not of the opinion that sparks could have been thrown off from a conveyor operating through the paint room and carrying war material to the storage department.

Members of the police sabotage squad were summoned shortly after the fire started. Following their conference with an army representative in charge of muni-

He Remembered

Washed out as a pilot in U. S. Army flying school, Second Lieutenant Ewart Sconiers of Defuniak Springs, Fla., bombardier aboard a flying fortress, proved he still knew plenty about flying when he brought the huge craft to a safe landing in England after the plane's pilots had been put out of action by German pursuits. He is pictured telling newsmen how he performed the feat.

SEWER RENTAL REBATE URGED

Mayor Proposes Abolition of Charge For Last Quarter; Cites Building Curb.

Confronted with the war-time inability to obtain materials for repair or expansion of the city sewage disposal plant, Mayor W. J. Locke is recommending to council that sanitary sewer rentals be rebated to domestic and commercial users for the last quarter of 1942.

"This will not disturb the reserve fund set up by ordinance last May," Mayor Locke declared.

ON WAY OUT

Nazi Official Loses Position In Occupied Poland.

(By United Press)

A strangely worded German broadcast indicated today that Hans Frank, veteran Nazi who now is governor general of Poland, may be headed for oblivion.

A Transocean News agency broadcast by Berlin said that Adolf Hitler's action yesterday in making Otto Georg Thierack, head of the dreaded Nazi "people's" court, minister of justice, was "of considerably more importance than an ordinary exchange of high officials."

Thierack succeeded to a post made vacant by the death several months ago of Justice Minister Franz Guertner. But he was also made president of the German Law academy and head of the Nazi Lawyers' union. Frank was relieved of these two posts and also that of head of the Nazi office of jurisdiction.

NEW DESTROYER

U. S. S. Beale Launched At Staten Island Shipyard.

NEW YORK —(INS)— Another addition to Uncle Sam's navy, the U. S. S. Beale, was started on its way to active service today.

The Beale, christened by Miss Nancy Beale, of Washington—great-grandniece of the late Lieutenant Edward Fitzgerald Beale for whom the destroyer was named, was launched in a night ceremony at the Staten Island shipyard of the Bethlehem Steel and Shipbuilding company. The keel of another destroyer was laid five minutes later.

SINK FLAK SHIP

British Forces Torpedo German Crafts Off Flushing.

LONDON — (U.P.)— The admiralty reported today that light British naval forces have torpedoed and "almost certainly" sunk a German anti-aircraft ship and damaged three others in an action off Flushing, Holland.

The action occurred Sunday night.

Heaviest New U. S. Battleship To Be Launched

NEW YORK —(INS)— Completed seven months ahead of schedule, the 45,000-ton U. S. S. Iowa, the greatest battleship ever to be launched, will slide down the ways at the Brooklyn Navy yard Thursday.

The Iowa, fourth naval ship to be named for the Hawk-eye state, will be sponsored by Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, wife of the vice president.

The launching ceremonies will be brief and simple and civilian guests will be kept at a minimum.

First of six vessels of the same class to be launched, the Iowa's keel was laid on June 27, 1940.

Her length of 880 feet will be 200 feet shorter than the largest ocean liner. But, as she goes down the ways, she will be the heaviest ship ever launched. Her main battery will consist of 16-inch guns.

The operation of the Iowa involves 900 motors, 5,300 lighting fixtures, 275 service and 816 battle telephones.

JOINS MARINES

Tyrone Adds Power To Corps; He'll Be Glider Pilot.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Movie star Tyrone Power today is playing in a new role—that of a U. S. marine glider pilot.

Power volunteered as a private and after a physical examination, was sworn in by Maj. William A. Howard, District of Columbia recruiting officer. The handsome actor, a licensed civilian pilot, will be in inactive status until he completes a picture he has begun in Hollywood.

Lexington Child Suffers Skull Fracture as She Runs In Front of Car.

A Dayton salesman died last night and his companion was seriously injured when their car turned over twice after failing to round a curve, six miles west of Mansfield on U. S. 30-S. In another accident a four-year-old Lexington girl received a fractured skull when she ran into the side of a moving auto while crossing the street in front of her home yesterday afternoon.

Richard P. McKain, 46, died at 2:30 a. m. today at General hospital of injuries received two hours before when his car plunged off the highway, out of control, and turned over twice.

Don't Be Bashful, Boys—Dance With Legion Hostesses

It may be that Richland county soldiers are bashful or just that they have their mind on the work ahead but M. Earl Saltzgaber, chairman of the Richland Victory Civic committee, says that they have been a bit backward in asking hostesses at "going-away" parties for dances.

It's not that the hostesses aren't attractive, either, Saltzgaber said that he had a lot of "sub-rosa" inquiries about the propriety of dancing with hostesses and that he wanted to make it clear that it was all right.

"As a matter of fact," said Saltzgaber, "the hostesses have asked me to tell the boys that they should feel at perfect liberty to ask for dances."

Whether it's round or square dancing they prefer, the selectees going to induction centers on September 1, 2 and 3 will be able to

Homberger Named Again—It's for Life

Roosevelt Sends His Name to Senate as City Postmaster.

Herman E. Homberger, 65, who four years ago missed getting a lifetime appointment as Mansfield postmaster by only two days, today finally received that appointment.

First made postmaster in 1934, Homberger was re-appointed for a four-year term on June 23, 1938. Two days later, President Roosevelt signed a bill which gave all postmasters with future appointments life tenure.

Homberger had lost a chance to have the job as Mansfield postmaster for life by only two days. He was the first Democratic postmaster since the days of Woodrow Wilson and back in 1938 the possibility that Roosevelt would run for a third term was not yet being discussed.

But today Homberger got good news. He was re-nominated postmaster again and this time he will get the benefit of the life tenure act which placed postmasters under Civil Service. Senate confirmation of his nomination is still needed but is a matter of routine. Homberger was appointed acting postmaster on April 10, 1934 to succeed H. E. Hawley, Republican, now chairman of the state liquor control board. On June 15 of the same year, he received his permanent appointment. His re-appointment in 1938 fell just short of the life tenure order.

Hawley served nine years before resigning. He succeeded the late

Army Asked To Strut Stuff At Mansfield Labor Day Ceremony

Big guns rolling and jeeps dancing and a-growling, with seasoned combat troops from Fort Hayes marching will lend an impressive war-time touch to Mansfield's "all-out" Labor day celebration Sept. 7 if arrangements committee plans carry.

Announcement was made at last night's committee conference in Boy Scout headquarters that ranking officers of the Fifth Service Command, Fort Hayes, have indicated that men and material will be loaned for what is designed to be the greatest pageant in Mansfield history. Famous P-40 war planes from Wright field may even soar over the city during the march.

Rumble of heavy machinery used for war and other purposes will be heard. Huge iron mules, grader conveyors and other mobile equipment produced or used by Mansfield industries will be paraded to make more impressive the 100 per cent unity celebration of all Mansfield labor unions, regardless of national affiliation.

Crews of decorators started work yesterday at the Armory building floats which will emphasize the patriotism of the city.

'KILLER CORPS'

Guerrillas Organized To Slay Puppets of Axis Powers.

LONDON —(U.P.)— Authoritative sources said today that Gen. Draja Mikhailovitch, chief of Jugoslavian guerilla forces, has established a special execution corps to assassinate puppet officials cooperating with the Axis and that one such assassination already has been carried out.

The selected corps has been assigned to kill Gen. Milan Neditch, the puppet premier of Serbia, and Ante Pavelic, the Croatian chief of state, these sources said.

The slaying at Chachak recently of a Professor Buhc, who was the assistant head of a Fascist force, was carried out by Mukhailvitch's new assassination force, which reportedly was acting with full consent of the Jugoslav government in exile here.

'Youngsters' Take Helm Of Democratic Party In County

The younger element of the Democratic party in Richland county took over the party reins at the central committee's organization meeting last night at the courthouse, winning three of the four committee offices.

Frank Long, Shelby law director, was elected chairman, succeeding G. A. Baer, party warhorse who has served as central committee and executive chairman at various times for many years. Long has been active in young Democratic work in the county.

Charles Spreng, Mansfield young Democratic worker, was chosen vice chairman and Miss Mary Newcomer, president of the Richland County Young Democratic club, was elected secretary. J. V. Finney, county relief director, was elected treasurer. All of them were elected unanimously. Atty.

VARGAS PLANS DOUBLE BLOWS AGAINST AXIS

Summons Cabinet To Discuss Economic Measures to Curb Enemy Nationals.

ARMY GROWS RAPIDLY

Methods of Training Troops Planned as Brazil Seizes Ships.

(By United Press)

RIO DE JANEIRO—President Getulio Vargas summoned his war cabinet today to plan more drastic economic measures against the Axis and to provide for the training and equipment of thousands of army recruits.

The cabinet will meet within the next few days, and it was understood that meetings will be held at regular intervals until the Axis is smashed.

Reports circulated that three more Axis submarines had been sunk by Brazilian, British and United States planes off the south coast of Brazil, but they were not confirmed by official quarters. The submarine menace had not been ended, however, by the relentless hunt that has been carried on the past 10 days.

The government was greatly encouraged by the fact that six South American republics — Paraguay, Argentina, Chile, Bolivia, Uruguay and Peru—had declared Brazil a non belligerent. Under this status, Brazilian ships may use their ports as long as and as freely as they wish, and economic restrictions imposed against nations considered belligerents are not applied.

The army was growing fast, following the minister of war's appeal for reserves of the second and third categories—those with military training but outside the army—to join the armed forces.

Many thousands had enlisted. A dispatch from Para said 1,000 men

LAUDED BY CHIEF

Ex-Mt. Gilead Soldier Given Praise of Gen. Marshall.

Sergeant Robert G. Lee, the former Mt. Gilead, O., boy who was hailed as a hero after rescuing two fellow passengers from a burning army transport plane after it crashed last week in the Berkshire hills of Massachusetts, today received a message of praise from Chief of Staff General George C. Marshall.

General Marshall said: "I wish to express my admiration for your very courageous action in saving your companions from the burning wreckage of the airship. No finer thing can be said of a soldier than that he was willing to sacrifice himself in order to save his companions in danger."

After the plane crashed Lee rescued two of his mates, then walked four miles through a wooded area to summon help. Sixteen others in the plane perished.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The navy has made its first payments of allotments and allowances authorized by the Rankin bill enacted last week to wives, children, parents and other dependents of its enlisted men in the lower grades.

Rear Adm. William Brent Young, navy paymaster general, signed checks to beneficiaries in 35 states. These checks totaled $17,435, of which the government contributed $10,053 and the men contributed $7,382 in deductions from their base pay.

City Shivers As Mercury Sinks To Record Low of 38

There may have been frost on the pumpkin in some parts of Richland county this morning as the mercury sank to 38 degrees, a record low for Aug. 25.

Albert S. Sprunger, weather observer, reported that this morning's low reading was the lowest recorded at his station so early in the summer in the 17 years for which statistics have been kept.

According to the weather report, continued cool weather today will give way to warmer temperatures tonight.

Sprunger said that a 37 reading was recorded on Aug. 30, 1934.

High mark for Mansfield yesterday was 72 degrees with an average for the past 24 hours of 55 degrees. This was 7.5 degrees under the 17-year average. At noon today the mercury had crept back to only 66 degrees.

OHIOAN PRAISED

Commended for Directing Fire at Japanese Bomber.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The navy yesterday commended Lieut. (J. G.) Robert B. Bolt, 25, of Cleveland, for directing machine gun fire which drove off a four-motored Japanese bomber attacking his ship in the Bay of Bengal.

The plane later landed and seven dead Japs were found inside.

U. S. Airmen Rip Two Carriers, One Battleship

Cruiser, Transport, Other Craft Damaged By Carrier Based Planes, As Enemy Counter Attacks Tulagi Area; Fight On Since Sunday.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The navy announced today that the Japanese have counter-attacked American forces holding the southeastern Solomon islands and that a great sea and air battle had developed in which the enemy had suffered more than half a dozen ships damaged.

The battle began developing on the afternoon of August 23 and already army and navy carrier-based planes have effectively bombed two Japanese carriers, one battleship, one transport, one cruiser, and an unspecified number of other cruisers which the navy described only as "several."

The transport and one cruiser were left burning fiercely after an aircraft attack on them north of Guadalcanal August 24.

The main action of the battle, the navy communique indicated, is currently in progress and the navy said that it was "a large scale battle" between American sea and air forces and a strong Japanese striking force which has approached the southeastern group of the Solomon islands from a northeast direction.

Army and navy units backing up the American Marines in the Solomons had expected a violent attempt by the Japanese to recapture their lost bases in the Tulagi area, and so, the navy said, apparently were fully prepared to meet it.

On this point the navy said succinctly, "This counter-attack has developed and is now being met."

As the navy related the developing battle action it

ATTACK: Tanks, Planes Swarm Across Don Toward Stalingrad

BULLETIN

STOCKHOLM—(U.P.)—The Swedish telegraph bureau reported from Ankara today that the Russians are evacuating Stalingrad's industries and the area along the banks of the Volga.

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW—The Germans massed large forces of tanks on the eastern bank of the Don before Stalingrad today while dive-bombers swarmed the skies and parachutists descended in the Don and Caucasus areas with anti-tank guns and motorcycles to menace further the already-precarious Red army positions.

A front-line dispatch said the Germans had been able to concentrate large masses of men and machines across the Don.

It said the Nazis brought up reserves during the night and attacked at dawn, tanks being followed by men with automatic rifles while planes rained down "many tons of bombs."

The first wave was turned back, but a half-hour later more bombers appeared and another charge began. In hard hand-to-hand fighting, the Red army stuck to its trenches and refused to break, this dispatch declared. Night fighting in that sector was featured by rocket and tracer bullets streaking across the sky while German siren bombs screamed.

An account to Pravda, Communist party paper, said the parachutists at one place landed in sufficient strength to permit their transport planes to alight on an air field and unload anti-tank guns, motorcycles and trench-mortars.

In some cases the parachutists descended in groups of 100, it was declared, anywhere from 12 to 18 miles behind the Soviet front lines. Nevertheless, they are not being used on the scale the Ger-

RAID: RAF Defies Weather To Blast Industries In Rhineland

(By United Press)

LONDON—Hundreds of British long range bombing planes fought through bad weather to bomb the German war industrial Rhineland during the night, resuming their night raids in force after a one-week lapse.

It was indicated that well upwards of 300 planes took part in a raid in which demolition and thousands of incendiary bombs were showered on industrial cities, especially Frankfurt and Wiesbaden.

An air ministry communique announced that 16 planes were missing, a clear indication of the force engaged as losses have averaged well below five per cent in such flights.

It had been hoped that the full bomber's moon would favor the British planes in their flight of 360 miles or more from their bases to attack a highly concentrated war industry and railroad center, in the first raid since an attack on the Osnabruck railroad center on the night of Aug. 17 in which 30,000 incendiary bombs alone were dropped.

While the big bombers, some carrying eight tons of bombs were attacking Germany, fighter planes struck heavily at railroad objectives in Holland and Belgium, destroying a number of locomotives which Germany desperately needs.

German planes were inactive during the night, but one plane of a small force which came over

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

(Note: James L. Kilgallen, INS reporter and war correspondent, is one of the greatest newspapermen in the history of the game. I have taken advantage of the fact that he is also my father to get him to write this column for me.—DK.)

Jim Kilgallen Says—

This is a good trick if I can do it! I'm going to give my own observations, recollections and impressions of a five months' assignment to the Pacific war zone—in ONE column.

I left New York less than 24 hours after the Japs attacked Pearl Harbor. I took Dorothy Kilgallen's good portable typewriter with me for luck, and arrived in Honolulu the day after Christmas.

Before I got back to New York, in May, I had some interesting experiences—the most exciting of all being a memorable trip to the Southwest Pacific with a U. S. Naval task force.

Impressions of Honolulu: What, no welcome? No pretty, dark-eyed damsels twangling ukuleles and singing the haunting "Aloha?" Oh yes, c'est la guerre. The famed "playground of the Pacific" had lost its traditional sparkle, gaiety and charm.

Martial law prevailed. Khaki-clad soldiers with fixed bayonets guarded public buildings. Droves of sailors in natty white uniforms moved through the downtown streets. At police headquarters I was fingerprinted for the first time in my life.

Never saw so many Asiatics in one place before. Hawaii had a "Japanese problem" all right. Every other business house in Honolulu seemed to be run by Japanese-Americans.

Honolulu's blackout was a corker. Silence fell over the city every night as the full tropical moon flooded the sea and cast shadows through palm trees on to the deserted streets. The only sound of footsteps were those of the armed guards or maybe those of some newspaper correspondent, flashlight in hand, furtively picking his way to the censor's office to file.

Impressions At Sea: I went out with the fleet on what a friend smilingly termed "a boat ride." It was a thrilling experience.

There was something majestic and inspiring about our task force—carrier, cruisers and destroyers—as it moved into the combat zone. A news reel photographer, Al Brick, and myself, were the only two non-combatants on board our cruiser. We were treated swell.

I always felt a bit embarrassed when our gentlemanly young officers deferred to me at gangways and elsewhere, with a polite, "After you, sir."

First time I heard the big guns fired (in practice) I didn't know what to think. I was sitting in the wardroom. The concussion knocked the hands off the clock on the wall.

I was given a life jacket, a gas mask and a steel helmet, and assigned a "battle station." As I was peering out over the sea in the darkness I'd ponder what I would do if the Japs torpedoed us and we had to abandon ship. I can just about swim the length of a Y. M. C. A. pool.

I often wondered if our men of the navy were naturally fatalistic. They never seemed to talk about danger.

Ice cream, not Japs, it seemed to me, worried the bulk of the boys. Will we have ice cream tonight? Well do I remember us having ice cream two days in a row—and GREEN ice cream at that. We were well below the equator, and we had two St. Patrick's Days. One March 17th east of the international dateline and another the next day west of the invisible line.

At night I'd play bridge with off-duty officers in the wardroom. The officers wore their whites in the evening. They looked smart and clean-cut. I'll never forget those men. I played bridge one night with two young flyers and next morning saw them catapulted out to sea in their patrol planes. I haven't seen them since. When they were missing six days, we printed a nice "obituary" in our ship's paper. Imagine the thrill when we got a flash that both had landed safely on a remote island, and had been rescued! This war is full of unsung heroes.

Footnote: I don't think the Japs can ever take the Hawaiian Islands.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the U. S. Pacific Fleet, and Lt. Gen. Delos C. Emmons, commanding general of the Hawaiian Department, will see to that. Everybody in Hawaii has supreme confidence in both men.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—On the set of "The Meanest Man in the World" Director Sidney Lanfield has a scene in which Priscilla Lane was to slap Jack Benny's face.

Coons

"It won't hurt much," Lanfield soothed Benny. "See, Priscilla is wearing gloves."

"Huh!" observed Eddie (Rochester) Anderson. "Joe Louis always wears gloves too."

"Meanest Man" is the picture Benny is making more or less under protest. More than less. He didn't like the script. But too late he decided that it wasn't up his alley. The production was ready to roll, a circumstance which gave the producer, William Pearlberg, the big legal stick. Actors can't change their minds at the last minute, after money has been spent on a previously approved script.

So Comedian Benny is working and being amiable about it. At least he isn't knocking his own picture. It's an adaptation of George M. Cohan's old play about the lawyer whose kind heart kept him from success and his efforts to be "mean" as a cure. He takes candy from children, ties cans to dogs' tails, and otherwise garners a flint-hearted reputation.

Benny's only expressed qualms are over the dog sequence, which will probably be omitted anyway, and over the title. He's afraid people will think it means Hitler.

Priscilla Lane may become a comedienne through this picture. The Benny formula for laughs always makes his associates funny. They bounce gags off the star—who is funny as the victim, seldom funny as the perpetrator of a joke.

Benny's singer, Dennis Day, is coming into pictures on his own—in Columbia's movie about the Powers models.

Some sort of Oscar for bungling ought to be awarded Paramount for its handling of the Vera Zorina-"Bell Tolls" business. Director Sam Wood and B. G. DeSylva, production chief, were at odds over the casting from the start—but couldn't it have been settled before Zorina was signed to play "Marcia," rather than afterward? Ingrid Bergman, finally chosen, will give a beautiful performance—and Zorina doubtless will get over the heartbreak. She was so sure she was meant for the role.

UNCERTAIN OF DEWEY'S STAND ON '44 RACE

New York GOP Hears Candidate Pledge Full Support To War Effort.

(By International News Service)

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y.—Delegates to the Republican state convention, prepared to nominate the rest of their ticket and adjourn, were divided today over whether their gubernatorial candidate, Thomas E. Dewey, has eliminated himself from the race for the 1944 presidential nomination.

Dewey, in his acceptance speech last night, declared that "I shall devote the next four years exclusively to the service of the people of New York state."

While this statement convinced some Republican leaders that Dewey has decided to postpone his quest of the presidency beyond 1944, supporters of Wendell L. Willkie were slow to claim for him New York's support at the national convention two years hence.

They awaited amplification by Dewey of his statement, interpreted in some quarters as an open bid for Willkie's backing in the state campaign.

Dewey was expected to amplify his statement at a press conference shortly after the convention adjourns today.

Republican leaders believe their gubernatorial candidate not only has left the door open for support from Willkie, but that he has made possible continued silence on the part of President Roosevelt regarding the Democratic candidate for governor, Attorney-General John J. Bennett, jr., whose nomination was effected by state chairman James A. Farley in the face of the president's opposition.

In his acceptance speech, Dewey said in part:

"There is something else that is not an issue in this campaign—our full support of the commander-in-chief, the president of the United States.

"Neither you nor I are here concerned with 1944. This convention and the Republican campaign are concerned only with the winning of the war and with good government for the people of the state of New York for the next four years.

The Republicans called upon the Roosevelt administration to draft the "best brains" of the country for the war effort, and insisted that the people be told "all the truth," except what must be concealed for military reasons.

Defense Job No Consideration In This Man's Case.

Despite his defense employment Eugene Wilson, colored, must serve 30 days in the county jail and pay a fine of $100 and costs on the charge of resisting an officer following a fight Aug. 17 on North Main street.

Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleish imposed the penalty this morning after declaring "it is the duty of this court to back up city police and other law enforcement officers to the limit."

Wilson, according to the report a week ago by Patrolman Floyd G. Bowers, showed fight when Bowers attempted to arrest him after he had broken up a free-for-all battle resulting from a gambling game. Wilson had been free on bond since his arrest.

COLUMBUS — The most harmonious meeting in recent Ohio Democratic party history was to be held today in Columbus as the state central committee elected at the Aug. 11 primary held its organization meeting.

Albert A. Horstman, Dayton printing firm executive, was to be re-elected committee chairman without opposition, and the committee then was to select an executive committee of approximately 50 members. The latter committee is to be headed by Darrell S. Jones, of Newark, long-time friend and political ally of John McSweeney and manager of the latter's successful campaign for the party's gubernatorial nomination.

Jones was to succeed J. Freer Bittinger, of Ashland, who headed executive committee affairs for the last two years and managed the last campaign of former Gov. Martin L. Davey.

The central committee also was to fix Sept. 18 and 19 as the dates for the party convention, required by law to draft and ratify a platform for the coming election campaign.

Not a ripple of discord was evident as the Democrats assembled, contrasting strongly with the bitterness of other years, climaxed by the campaign two years ago when Davey, defeated for the nomination by National Committeeman Charles Sawyer, not only refused to support Sawyer but privately urged his supporters to do likewise.

In McSweeney the party seems to have found a Moses to lead it out of the political wilderness. Although he lacked organization backing in the primary campaign, all factions are now united under his banner and promise to wage an aggressive campaign to unseat the Republican administration.

Mansfield Tire Starts Campaign Of Bond Buying

A campaign to enroll employes in a 10 per cent total payroll deduction plan to buy war bonds had been launched today at the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company plant. The drive will continue for three weeks.

Seventy per cent of the company's employes are already using 10 per cent of the pay to buy war bonds, said C. C. Warner, assistant general chairman of the campaign committee. The 10 per cent is deducted from the employes' pay checks.

Heading the drive as general chairman will be H. B. Soulen. Working with him and Warner will be members of the plant's labor-management war bond committee, William Bauer, Paul Blayney, Edward Davis, James Billington, Ray Gerhart and R. A. McCracken.

The treasury department "victory" flag will fly over the plant if enough employes sign the bond pledge so that at least 10 per cent of the company payroll goes into war bonds and stamps.

WPB COMMITTEE PROMISES AID TO KAISER ON CARGO PLANES

(By United Press)

LOS ANGELES—The war production board committee, appointed to evaluate Henry J. Kaiser's plans to build 500 giant cargo planes, pledged its support today and announced "it will do everything in its power" to help him.

Kaiser, who has announced that he would team with Howard J. Hughes, aircraft designer, movie producer and round-the-world flier, on the cargo plane program said there had been "no change in the program" since the committee's meeting.

"We are working on raw materials and finished materials, and there are many details to be finished before the program can be started. But we have no lack of intention," he said.

The committee, composed mainly of leading aircraft manufacturers, was asked to hear Kaiser's plans and evaluate them from "a practical manufacturing standpoint" and determine the type of plane that could be produced most effectively.

Committee members included Donald W. Douglas of Douglas Aircraft, Glenn L. Martin of Martin Aircraft, John K. Northrop, of Northrop Aircraft and Grover Loening, WPB consultant.

Kaiser proposes to manufacture the giant planes in his shipyards which have broken all records in construction of liberty ships.

Kaiser and Hughes said they planned to build land planes twice as large as the Constellation and larger than the B-19, world's largest bomber.

Sidney Brennan, secretary-treasurer of AFL Drivers local 544, said the back-to-work order—apparently motivated by a War Labor board warning to drivers to "terminate your defiance of your government" came from Dexter Lewis, director of the central states area committee of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (AFL) office at Chicago.

All 19 of California's congressmen sought re-election, while the three new districts created by the reapportionment of 1940 and the vacancy created by the death of Lee Geyer provoked close contests.

WIFE WEEPS WHEN JURORS READ VERDICT

Cash, Chemicals Found on Spy, Former Honor Student, When He Arrived in U. S.

(By International News Service)

NEWARK, N. J.—A sentence of death or imprisonment up to 30 years today confronted Herbert Karl Friedrich Bahr, German-born naturalized American Buffalo honor student, convicted by a federal jury of six men and six women on a charge of espionage conspiracy. Judge William F. Smith set Sept. 2 for sentencing.

The jury deliberated only two hours yesterday to arrive at the decision that Bahr was guilty of conspiring with eight Nazi agents in neutral countries to post Germany about United States industrial and military progress.

The verdict brought bitter tears from his young wife, Mrs. Ruth Bahr, who had come to the trial to be of any service to him, even though it was the first time in four years that she had seen him. Bahr, 29 years old, had gone to Germany shortly after their marriage to receive special training instructions by the Nazi Gestapo.

"I thought I had no more affection for him before this came up," said Mrs. Bahr, employed as a maid in Buffalo, and temporarily staying at the Salvation Army shelter. "But when I walked into the courtroom and saw him all my love came back. I'll stand by him, but what can I do? I'm penniless."

Recipient eight years ago of the Dartmouth alumni award for leadership, character and achievement, the bespectacled defendant who had achieved high scholastic and athletic attainments in American schools met the verdict stoically.

Evidence introduced at the trial showing that Bahr, at the time of his return to the United States from Germany aboard the diplomatic exchange ship Drottningholm on June 30, was carrying in concealment $1,500 in cash, chemicals for manufacturing invisible ink and a list of Nazi agents in neutral countries through whom information could be transmitted to Germany.

It Looked Like Sabotage But It Was Just Romance

ELGIN, Ill.—(U.P.)—Aviator C. A. Bohle, from a mile above, looked down and saw the 50-foot initials, "C. B.—D. R.," cut in pale green letters in the dark green hayfield.

Bohle, his mind on fifth columnists went to Sheriff Marcus W. Damisch of Kane county. Damisch was skeptical, but he called the Federal Bureau of Investigation at Chicago.

Bohle, Damisch and the federal agent went up in Bohle's plane. Bohle had not exaggerated. The letters were plain as ever in the six-inch stubble of the field. The men marked down the field's location and visited Joseph Bagg, its owner.

Bagg knew nothing about the letters. He said his son Charles, 15, had mowed the field.

Charles blushed. "I was just cutting the field last Saturday," he said, "and it occurred to me that, well, that I'd like to cut my initials with the mower. The 'C. B.' stands for my name and the 'D. R.' stands for, well, those are Dorothy Russell's initials. We're in the same class in high school and she's my girl."

Six Jap Ships Hit as Sea-Air Battle Rages

said that preliminary reports "indicate that the enemy striking force has been attacked by United States Army flying fortresses and that our carrier-based naval aircraft are in action."

A large Japanese carrier, the name of which was not given, was attacked by army bombers which reported scoring four hits.

Navy carrier-based aircraft were credited with having "severely damaged" a smaller Jap carrier, the Ryuzyo, a 7,100-ton vessel completed in 1933, which carried about 24 aircraft.

In addition to this damage, the navy said that "several enemy cruisers and a battleship also have been hit by our carrier planes."

The navy referred to "our occupation of the important enemy base at Tulagi," suggesting that Tulagi harbor itself may have been completely captured by American forces.

In the preliminary phases of the battle on August 23, the navy related, a "strong enemy air attack" was made against Guadalcanal island but was intercepted by American fighters and 21 enemy planes were shot down with only "minor" losses for the Americans.

That night enemy destroyers approached Guadalcanal and shelled shore positions. The following day United States aircraft hit the enemy transport and the cruiser north of Guadalcanal.

To its account of what has happened so far the navy added the brief remark, "The action continues."

There was no indication in the navy communique as to where the Japanese force came from in its approach to the Solomons battle area in the South Pacific.

There was some speculation, however, that it might have been concentrated at Truk island in the Caroline group which lies northwest of the Solomons and from there had approached the Solomons in a wide sweeping maneuver characteristic of naval actions.

Truk is one of Japan's greatest naval bases and is only about 1,000 miles from the Solomons.

However, the Japanese have other large bases in their mandated islands and might have concentrated the Solomons attack force at any one or more of them.

While the course of the battle for victory or defeat could not be judged in the absence of information about damage to American units, preliminary estimates here were that the Japanese were being hit hard where they could be hurt most, that is, in their aircraft carrier strength.

Up to today the Navy had claimed six carriers sunk, including all of Japan's biggest-type floating air fields, one probably sunk and two damaged. Today's report raised the total of damaged to four. In addition the Army reported some time ago having dropped a torpedo on the deck of a carrier in the Alentians area.

The naval-air action resulting from the Japanese counter attack is the second heavy engagement to occur in the Solomons and apparently is of fiercer nature than the first.

The first occurred on the night of Aug. 8-9 when an enemy force of cruisers and destroyers attempted to attack the American transports and cargo ships landing the marine occupation forces. The enemy war vessels were intercepted by an American screening force of cruisers and destroyers and heavy fighting ensued at close range. Both sides suffered damage—the extent of injury inflicted on the enemy being undetermined in the darkness—but the final victory then fell to the Americans because the enemy retreated before reaching the vessels engaged in landing operations.

The Solomons invasion began Aug. 7 and has now been in progress two and one-half weeks.

The initial phases of the operations, first offensive action against the Japanese, apparently moved rapidly in favor of the marine amphibious attack forces for it was officially reported that "vigorous enemy resistance was rapidly overcome" and after relatively few days the marines were consolidating their positions and beginning to mop up the enemy's land forces.

This was carried on under occasional minor harrassment by enemy aircraft, destroyers and submarines which, however, had offered no serious opposition.

The Japanese presumably were following the strategy of concentrating their full available power for a single terrific attempt to drive the Americans out of the Solomons.

EARTH DIMS OUT MOON TONIGHT

Entire Eclipse To Be Visible, Starting At 11 P. M.

CINCINNATI — (INS) — North America's second complete eclipse of the moon of 1942 is scheduled to start late today and continue until early tomorrow. Unlike the total eclipse of March 2, which began in the late afternoon during daylight hours, today's can be witnessed in its entirety, Dr. Elliott Smith, director of the University of Cincinnati Observatory, said.

The earth will begin its total blackout of the moon at 11:01 p. m., and the heavenly spectacle will end at 2:34 a. m. tomorrow, Smith said.

The last total eclipse of the moon which was favorable for observation throughout the country was in 1935. The next will occur Feb. 20, 1943 the astronomer reported.

and neck and scalp wounds. The burns apparently resulted from the car's hot exhaust pipe against which Lieberman lay after being thrown from the car. Hospital attendants said his condition was fair today.

State highway patrolmen said that McKain, driving west on Route 30-S, apparently lost control of his automobile while trying to round a curve.

His auto first ran off the road on the left side then darted back across the highway to the right where it hit the ditch and turned over twice.

Acting Coroner A. C. Biddle said McKain's death was due to a fractured skull.

Running across the street from her own home to her grandmother's house, Barbara Ann Linton, 4, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Linton of Lexington received a fractured skull when she ran into the side of a moving car driven by Peter P. Franzen, 39, of Columbus.

She was taken to General hosptial where attendants reported her condition as "critical" today.

Witnesses told state highway patrolmen that she had waited on a south-bound car to pass and then started across the highway and ran into the side of Franzen's auto approaching from the opposite direction. Franzen was not held.

He Wasn't Going To Be Caught But Police Outran Him

Following a chase through residential districts which sometimes reached a speed of 60 miles an hour, motorcycle traffic patrolman last night arrested an 18-year-old youth who "wasn't going to be caught again."

In municipal court this morning A. J. Watson, 63 Dawson avenue, pleaded guilty of a second traffic violation within a month. He was fined $10 and costs and his driving rights revoked for nine months by Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch.

Patrolman Arthur J. Conrady told the court that at 9 p. m. he warned Watson to drive slower after noting his alleged excessive speed at Marion and Vennum avenues.

Patrolman Earl Korn also testified he had warned the youth shortly before that and in the same neighborhood. Conrady's report said Watson sped away, whirling his car on two wheels onto Sloan avenue, narrowly missing a car driven by Kenneth Greer, 495 Park View drive. On reaching Bartley avenue Watson turned off his left, Conrady reported.

Back at Marion and Vennum avenues he was apprehended by Patrolman Korn following a near-collision with a second car. At the police station, the patrolmen said, young Watson declared "you got me once for something I didn't do and I made up my mind you wouldn't catch me the next time." He was held in jail in lieu of $100 bond for court hearing.

Watson was fined $10 and costs Aug. 4 on the charge of unsafe operation of an auto.

mans employed in the Low Countries or Crete, apparently because German transport plane strength has been weakened, Pravda said.

The Soviet information bureau communique said that the Germans who had crossed the Don had succeeded in making an advance southeast of Kletskaya in fierce fighting, but that the Russians were repulsing new attacks.

The invaders also have driven to the Prokhladnenski area 85 miles northeast of the oil town of Grozny, but 200 men of a Nazi mountain detachment were killed there and an attack in "many times greater" strength was repulsed, the information bureau said.

Although the Germans were throwing in large forces less than 40 miles from Stalingrad, life in that industrial center was reported continuing at a normal but fast tempo.

Factories work day and night and barges of fresh supplies unload constantly, said Pravada.

(A Stockholm report relayed via Reuters said the situation before Stalingrad was most serious, with battles already raging 30 miles from the city. The German high command reported progress in the drive toward Stalingrad, advances in passes of the Caucasus mountains, and said the German war flag now floated over Mount Elborus, highest peak in Europe.)

A series of engagements in the four active sectors of the Stalingrad-Caucasus front was declared to have cost the Germans 1,450 dead and 84 tanks damaged or destroyed, but the Soviet position in the south was never more critical.

In the face of setbacks, the Moscow radio revived Premier Joseph Stalin's May day demand for the final defeat of Germany this year and Russian soldiers—their lines fluid but still intact—again were urged to stand their ground.

The pincer action against Stalingrad from the direction of Kotelnikovski, 95 miles to the southwest, was developed by a tank wedge into Soviet lines, although Red Star said the tanks remained cut off from infantry support.

Russians fell back in both the central Caucasus and below Krasnodar in the west, but levied a heavy toll on the Germans, it was announced.

Invaders drove to the Prokhladnenski area only 85 miles northeast of the oil town of Grozny.

Soviet planes covered a Red army withdrawal south of Krasnodar, on the Kuban river 60 miles northeast of the Black Sea port of Novorossisk.

German infantry attacks were reported repulsed on a number of northwestern front sectors and a Russian assault led to hand-to-hand fighting in the Nazi trenches.

Berlin Says Week to Seal Stalingrad Fate

LONDON—(UNS)—A Berlin military spokesman was quoted by the Vichy radio today as claiming that the fate of Stalingrad will be settled before the end of the week.

The broadcast, heard by Reuter's news agency, asserted that the Germans take the view that when the Volga is reached they will possess for the first time "a natural frontier between Europe and Asia." This achieved, it was contended the Germans will not attempt any further drives for the time being.

'Youngsters' Take Helm Of Democratic Party In County

Marshall Moore has been secretary of the committee and the other offices were vacant.

The young Democrats also paved the way for the election of an executive chairman from their ranks by getting the central committee to agree to add one more member to the executive committee, making 94 members.

John Correll, young Democratic worker who made the motion, said it would permit the election of an executive chairman who is not now a member of the central committee.

Under the Democratic plan of setting up an executive committee, each of the 93 members of the central committee is permitted to name himself or another person from his precinct to the executive group. Most of the central committeemen said last night they would also serve as executive committee members. Several of the executive committee posts, however, were not filled.

The county Young Democratic club is said to favor former Sheriff E. P. Long for executive chairman. He is neither a member of the central or executive committees. John C. O'Donnell, the present executive chairman, has indicated he will not seek re-election.

The committee last night filled five vacancies and left three more to be filled. Attorney George Biddle was named committeeman in Precinct H of the Third ward, Boyd Wierman to the post in Precinct J of the Third ward, Arthur Dewey in Precinct F of the Third ward, Clarence Boals in Precinct B of the Fourth ward, and Mrs. Ruth Bell in Precinct B of Madison township.

Vacancies remain in Precincts D and F of the heavily Republican Second ward and in Precinct E of the Sixth ward.

The central committee authorized the executive committee to fill vacancies in either group.

George Balliet, who served as temporary chairman at the meeting, told committeemen how to mail absentee voters' applications to members of the armed forces for the fall election and urged that an effort be made to get the soldier vote.

Introduced by Correll along with the other county candidates, Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston, seeking re-election, called for the support of candidates this fall "whose philosophy is above partisanship and who are more interested in making a lasting peace after the war than in winning the next election."

Also introduced were County Commissioner C. L. Mitchell and County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe, both candidates for re-election. Correll spoke in behalf of Samuel A. Anderson for congress in the 17th district and Ralph Lutz for state representative.

company, Mansfield Provident Loan company, Mansfield Teachers' union and the Kent Rummel Coal company. Other entries are expected before the deadline tonight. No commercial advertising will be permitted in the parade and only decorated vehicles allowed to enter.

Bands definitely signed thus far are the three local high school units, the Mansfield and Galion American Legion drum corps, Local 711 band, North Liberty, Bellville and Fredericktown high school bands and the Bucyrus Girls' band. Word is awaited from Tiro, Ganges and Leesdale high school bands.

Possibility of the appearance of the Plum Brook Ordnance Works band of Sandusky, together with a marching unit of 80 Plum Brook patrolmen which is rapidly gaining fame was also announced last night.

Walking units, floats and mobile equipment will form in divisions on streets entering Park avenue west at Bowman street. Route of march will be east on Park avenue, around Central park, right onto North Main street, west on Fourth street, with labor and some other foot units turning left out of column or south on Mulberry street and dispersing at Third street. This will permit, especially, members of labor organizations to hear all of the speaking program which follows the parade in Central park. Vehicles, military units, and probably certain civilian defense groups and others will continue on West Fourth street to Bowman street.

"No parking" signs will be placed over meters and on whiteway posts throughout this area in time to prevent forenoon parking along the route of march.

It was announced last night that able speakers have been obtained and that a continuous program of athletic events, dancing, floor shows and other features arranged for the afternoon and evening will follow the downtown speaking program.

The general committee will meet next week on Wednesday and Friday evenings at Scout headquarters with Floyd Dent, grand marshal, and Al Conroy, assistant marshal, to add finishing touches to parade plans, Harry Gerhart, general chairman, announced.

A government order yesterday brought 57 German and 18 Italian vessels that took refuge in Brazilian waters when war broke out in 1939 under the Brazilian flag.

U. S., Brazil Expected To Strike at Subs

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The United States and Brazil were expected today to begin soon a campaign to drive Axis submarines out of the sealines leading to Rio De Janeiro.

Brazil's entrance into the war also is expected to result in extension of the convoy system to waters surrounding that country. Nearly all of the navy's recent ship sinkings have been "off the northern coast of South America."

The submarine menace remains one of the United Nation's major obstacles in fighting the war. The Germans are believed to have at least 200 of them still in operation. But effective convoying has increased the toll the submarines have had to pay for their successes.

HOMBERGER 'IN' FOR LIFE, NOW

Postmaster Renominated Today By FDR; He Missed 4 Years Ago By 2 Days.

Capt. Walter F. Bradford, also a Republican, appointed by President Harding to succeed Fred M. Bushnell, Democrat.

Before assuming the position as postmaster, Homberger was Mansfield's service-safety director for 27 months, having taken office along with the late Mayor Charles M. Lantz on Jan. 1, 1932. Prior to that, he was in the insurance and real estate business and active in Democratic circles. He served two terms as county treasurer from 1914 to 1918.

Since he took over the job as postmaster in 1934, Mansfield's postoffice has shown steady increases in territory, volume of mail and receipts. His office took in Woodland and outlying city roads as the city developed.

When he took office, there were approximately 80 employes. At present, 102 are employed. Receipts have jumped from $241,000 in 1934 to $385,000 in 1941.

The war added to the flow of mail and work for the postoffice until the free "franking" for servicemen cut the necessary stamping and handling. Many industrial firms have cut the amount of mailing in the past few months but except for the war-time, the office has expanded gradually.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, AUGUST 25, 1942.

Great need of the moment is for more maps with the arrows pointing in the right direction.

Those earlier sugar hoarders who neglected to pound the sacks are now in a dilemma as 25-pound lumps are too large for convenient use.

Unheard remark: "I'm always patient at restaurants because I know the proprietors have trouble getting experienced help and you can't expect 'service as usual'."

Brazil Can Play Important Part

ENTRY of Brazil into the war against the Axis powers means much more than an estimate of the military strength of that country might indicate, as is shown in an article on this page by Major Paul C. Raborg, war analyst.

Although Brazil, like all other South American countries except Argentina and Chile, had severed diplomatic relations with Germany and Italy months ago, final incitement to the declaration of war came as a result of wanton murder of Brazilians by Nazi submarines which attacked ships engaged in coastal service.

While still a non-belligerent Brazil was not in position to act as drastically against fifth columnists within its borders as is now possible, nor was there the incentive to build up army, navy and air force with the speed now being undertaken.

Immediate effectiveness of Brazil's co-operation is expected to be seen in combatting the submarine menace along her own coasts and in the part of the Caribbean area.

It is also noted that the easternmost tip of South America, a part of Brazil, is the closest point to Dakar, West Africa, which is the most logical jumping-off place for an attempted Axis invasion of this hemisphere, and this will now become increasingly difficult.

Action by other South American countries will be awaited with interest, as realization grows among them that the fate of all of the Americas is linked with the United Nations.

Parolees Who Desire To Enlist

EXTENT to which youthful offenders against the law should be priviliged to enlist for military service appears to be a matter of fairly general agreement among authorities that come in close contact with this problem.

Among other points, recent discussion of this subject has disclosed that youthful first offenders who are deemed suitable for parole, and who meet physical and mental requirements of the branch of service in which they aspire to enlist, should not be barred from opportunity to serve their country.

Experience with Ohio state reformatory parolees who have been inducted into military service has evidenced the soundness of such a course and there is reason to believe that excellent records will be made by a large percentage of the men whose first disciplinary experience was gained as reformatory inmates and who were later privileged to enter military service.

In no instance has this attitude toward first offenders been stretched to include "repeaters" or persons convicted of major offenses, and character, background, behavior and probable amenability to military discipline and training are considered in each instance.

Such has been the course pursued by Common Pleas Judge Huston in handling cases of first offenders whom he regards as meriting parole and who express desire to enlist in the service if they can pass required tests.

From his own broad field of military experience Judge Huston has gained knowledge of army requirements and strongly disapproves acceptance of men who have criminal records or of law violators whose offense is such that they are not considered eligible for parole.

This position appears sound and is in accord with the expressed thought of criminologists as well as many military and civil authorities and courts.

When Millions Save a Little Fat

HALF A CUP of kitchen drippings seems such a trifling thing, hardly worth carrying to the butcher to be turned into the big can which holds the fat brought in by the other folks on the street. But this war is teaching people the truth of that old Scotch proverb, that "manny a mickle makes a muckle."

Americans know about millionaires who made their fortunes from the sale of popcorn at five cents a bag, or even from matches at a penny a box. Profits on such sales are often only a fraction of a cent, but multiplied enough times they result in millions of dollars.

When tailors were asked to snip off the cuffs on men's pants, cartoonists made funny pictures about it. But the cuffs on 40,000,000 pairs of pants represent more than 2,000,000 yards of fabric.

The half cup of fat a week may seem trifling, but 40,000,000 half cups is 20,000,000 cups or almost 10,000,000 pounds a week. Probably there are not more than 20,000,000 families in the country who could turn in their half cups. But multiply this 5,000,000 pounds by the 52 weeks in a year. Does the half cup help? It does.

Is Nelson's Authority Sufficient?

DONALD NELSON, war production boss, is a man of high integrity and great ability. There is perhaps as much confidence in him as in any man at Washington. But it is evident that he has not been operating to the full extent of his ability. There seems to have been some block or restraint. Either he has not had full power for the job, or he has not chosen to use full power.

Whatever powers Mr. Nelson possesses come from the president. The latter, in a time like this, becomes a virtual dictator through the authority given him by congress.

The president himself is known to be chary about releasing power to others. But it is obvious by this time that if anyone at Washington in a position like Donald Nelson's needs more authority, it should be granted.

In addition to not understanding Jap psychology or Indian mentality, Americans have become somewhat confused about themselves.

It remained for a navy newspaper to note that one of the gobs eats as if he had a closet in his skeleton.

Wonder is increasing as to why the Pacific ocean was so named.

More 'Second Front' Speculation

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Of course the chances of an additional United Nations continental European front against Herr Hitler has been all the talk in Washington, London and doubtless in the Axis capitals also ever since British Prime Minister Winston Churchill's visit to Moscow, presumably to discuss the matter with Russian Chief Commissar Josef Stalin, with W. Averell Harriman sitting in as President Roosevelt's representative.

It's speculative talk, naturally. It scarcely requires saying that the American, British and Muscovite high commands will suppress the news as far as they can, for the sake of taking Adolf as much by surprise as possible. However, it's difficult to see how a formidable Yankee expeditionary force can be smuggled across the Atlantic without attracting a good bit of the fuehrer's attention. In fact, he must have his suspicions already. Nevertheless, the military complex is strongly for all the secrecy it can manage until the psychological moment arrives for its bomb to go off and blow the unprepared enemy to smitheration.

Still, there's plenty of gossip.

That the question arises, Is Adolf fixed to put up a pretty stiff fight against an attack from his westward?" goes without quoting it.

Some authorities theorize affirmatively.

There are others, though, who believe it would disorganize him frightfully.

Internal Help.

In the first place, it's argued, the peoples of all the countries he's conquered temporarily, would grab the opportunity to rise up against him solidly, their numbers considerable and they could make him a deal of trouble, more or less armed from here and Britain.

The Free French, it's a foregone conclusion, would be with 'em.

As has been remarked previously, the fuehrer's been trying to get Spain into his totalitarian partnership and Caudillo Franco doesn't seem unwilling. An Anglo-American continental invasion, though, would be fairly certain to scare him out of it, at least until convinced of the Nazis' ability to defend themselves.

And what would be the internal effect on the Axis?

The guess has been ventured before that Germany's own morale is increasingly a trifle rickety. The last war demonstrated that those Teutons can crack up in a hurry. What mightn't a run of bad luck do to it this time?

It's been known all along that Italy's feet are cold. Maybe Duce Mussolini's personal pair of 'em are, or if not, his home folk might supply some refrigeration.

Japan's consideration.

Those Japs, it's recognized, want to invade and gobble Asiatic Russia. With the Soviets hard pushed on their German frontage, the attempt probably wouldn't be a poor gamble by the Mikado. That would be decidedly calculated to make Moscow fold up as one of the United Nations. But it wouldn't be at all a healthy experiment for Nippon, with Russia's Siberian hands left comparatively free by United Nations' activities in the opposite direction and with the United States hammering at the island empire from our side of the Pacific, plus China in its immediate neighborhood.

Doolittle Over Germany.

It's noteworthy that Gen. James H. Doolittle, who bombed Japan's chief cities not long ago, has been in London recently. He was so successful and so rattled Jap morale that it's been wondered why he didn't do it some more, but apparently he's been figuring that he could do more good as a second-frontist over Germany and is doing out that program. If so, okey, Germany's closer to the bull's eye than Japan is.

From all accounts, Chief of Staff George C. Marshall of the United States army will be the United Nations' "second front" commander.

He's equal to it and he's got the

Old-Fashioned Homes

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

SHE wants me to make a plea for "the old-fashioned home." All these female defense workers, these women warriors, what are they going to do to family life? How can we possibly preserve the homes we knew as children?

The answer, lady dear, is—we can't.

I'm an old-fashioned homemaker myself. I like to devote hours to baking my own bread and rolls, making my own vegetable soup, canning my preserves, hand-hemming my own table linen. I'm never happier than when I'm groveling around in the garden, and all my gal friends have similar instincts. But do they indulge them? They do not. And there'd be the dickens to pay if they did.

FOR THE OLD-FASHIONED HOME IS NOT GOING: IT'S GONE!

It has gone because it no longer fits the need and the tempo of our times. Granted, there was a beauty about it and a comfort which one rarely finds today. But such beauty and comfort are expensive luxuries in 1942.

The woman who would insist on hand-hemming her dish towels, as every proper bride was supposed to do in 1900, would receive no medals today. She'd be yanked before a psychiatrist and should be. For the modern woman has bigger jobs to tackle than fancy work.

When the automobile and the movies came in, the old-fashioned home went out, and suffrage finished what was left of it. The family fireside of today spreads as far as your tires will take you.

Your job as a wife and mother is as broad as any radio circuit. And you have only yourself to thank if your children don't appreciate the shining floors and spotless silver over which you spent a day's toil. That sort of toil is an economic anachronism. It belongs back with the buggy and the bustle and the "rats" we once wore under our pompadours.

And it's a grand, good thing, says I. Yes, I have many a secret gripe over my dusty mantlepiece and dingy pewter. I long—and plenty—for the complicated salads and flower arrangements I used to make, and the innumerable gadgets which I surrounded my home. And the condition of my living room would make my grandmother turn in her grave. But it's jake with me! I'm all for the new, streamline way of living. It's healthier...less expensive...and infinitely more wholesome than the old way of doing things.

For the old-fashioned home was by no means the idealistic refuge we like to picture it. It required a lifetime of needless drudgery that benefited nobody. It was frequently as dull as dishwater. It harbored endless petty feuds and gossip, back-biting, tyranny and downright cruelty. It was a stagnant backwash in the great current of life, and those who stayed in it too much or too long were inevitably crippled.

So I'm not putting up a plea for the old-fashioned home, but I am rooting hard for the love and loyalty that functioned in it, for the courage and fresh inspiration it so often gave. These things do not depend on hand-hemmed dish towels or home-made soup or fancy work doilies. They do not even depend on the nightly family circle huddled around a lamp. They can blossom far more fully and freely without that huddle... with the members of the family going happily on their ways to different tastes and wider horizons.

And that includes Ma — even though she may wear a defense uniform instead of a gingham apron. For Ma has something greater to defend today than a cut-glass fruit dish. She's out in the front line trenches. And wherever her heart is, that's home!

Hitler's Winter Strategy Hinges On Ability of Russia to Hold Out

—By LOUIS F. KEEMLE

AS THE RUSSIANS are pressed back in the Don-Volga area and the north Caucasus, the British are making evident preparations for possible action over a wide area of the Middle East this winter.

The Russian position undoubtedly is grave. The Germans have pushed their way in force across the bend of the Don to within 40 miles of Stalingrad and have made it impossible for the Russians to use the railroad between Stalingrad and Moscow.

If the Germans reach the Volga, it means not only the fall of the important industrial center of Stalingrad but the severance of the great waterway, which is such an important link in Russia's line of supply for oil and the materials of war from the Allies.

If the momentum of the Germans should carry them past the Volga to the railway linking Astrakhan and the north, they will have dealt a crippling blow to Russia's southern supply route and will have cut the army of the Caucasus completely off from the armies of the north.

Such an outcome would put the Germans in a position to strike past the Grozny oil fields of the Caucasus towards Baku and the Middle East. Evidently with this prospect in mind, the British have created a new army command in Iran and Iraq, south of the Caucasus, under Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson.

The possibilities of a second front in the Baku region are latent in this British move. If the Germans make the challenge, the British are bound to meet it.

Much depends on what Hitler's planned strategy for the winter is. Hitler is expending every ounce of energy to get in a favorable, stable position before winter. He is expending men and material at a lavish rate, with utter disregard of the cost.

If Hitler achieves his objectives, it is quite possible that he hopes to hold in Russia for the winter and ease the strain on his war production. Such a lull would give him about six months to replenish his depleted reserves and build again for another mighty offensive next spring.

Rather than Russia, Hitler's main effort next year probably would be in western Europe, where the Allies most probably would open a second front, if they do not do so before then.

This does not preclude winter activity in Egypt and the Middle East. A drive there would not call for the great expenditure which Hitler had to make in Russia this summer.

Marshal Erwin Rommel, for instance, already has a force in Egypt which the British have not been able to push back. If Hitler is able to withdraw any considerable reinforcements from Russia for the Egyptian front, the balance might be swung to Rommel's favor for a drive to Suez.

Any simultaneous blow at the south Caucasus would keep the British Middle Eastern army divided on two widely separated fronts.

Brazil's Strategic Value In War

—By MAJOR PAUL C. RABORG

(Editor's Note—Brazil's declaration of war against Germany and Italy was not only a great strategic but an economic and diplomatic-political triumph for the United Nations, Major Paul C. Raborg, noted military analyst and author of "Mechanized Might," states in the following article, written especially for International News Service.)

BRAZIL'S declaration of war on Germany and Italy is one of the greatest strategic, economic and diplomatic-political victories for the United States and the United Nations yet obtained in this war.

Viewing it from the political standpoint, the Axis nations have constantly proclaimed that the countries to the south of us in all of their actions since commencement of the present war have acted under duress—in other words the United States has forced them to adopt policies which were not their own. Such statements now have been proved obviously untrue.

The entire world is completely aware that the Axis nations forced Brazil's declaration of war because of the unwarranted and unnecessary sinking of Brazil's, a neutral nation's, merchant ships.

Politically, it definitely shows American solidarity against the Axis nations and their ideology. Brazil is the largest individual country in South America, and her entry into the war on the side of the United Nations will have a guiding effect on that entire continent. It will exercise a great influence on Argentina and Chile, the two countries that have not terminated diplomatic relations with the Axis.

Germany, Italy and Japan have proclaimed that there is no sincerity in cooperation of the nations to the south of us with our world policies. They say that the United States has purchased south American allegiance and that this allegiance is only temporary. With the readjustment of world markets, Uncle Sam had to play banker for many South American countries, whose European and Far-Eastern trade had been stopped. This, however, was only a start to place them in the position of revamping their trade within the hemisphere.

Since the original financial assistance it has become only too visible that inter-American trade properly attuned to costs of production, will exceed in volume even the wildest dreams of the most optimistic. And again Brazil's declaration of war is proof positive of these facts.

Venezuela is, and has been, very friendly with the United States. Economically, it has been stated that if Venezuela's and Brazil's oil, rubber and metals were added to our own source of supply, there would result a world "corner" on the sinews of war. It is reliably stated that Henry Ford alone owns a rubber property in Brazil which, when brought into production, could equal the amount of that commodity produced in Malaya.

Strategically the good results from a military viewpoint are so great they are almost unmeasurable.

The United States already has bases established on the British island of Trinidad, and in Dutch Guinea on the mainland of South America. It is now a comparatively simple matter in co-operation with the armed forces of Brazil, to extend this military protection as far south as may be desired, which will be, of course, at least to Uruguay.

Though the armed forces of Brazil are not overly large, they will be of immeasurable assistance to the United States in the maintenance of our protective patrols in the north and south Atlantic oceans.

All in all, Brazil's declaration of war is just cause for great rejoicing on the part of the United Nations.

Man About Manhattan

Theatrical Headaches

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—The problems of operating a professional summer theatrical season in a university town, which is booming along on an accelerated program in co-operation with the armed services, are many and often comical, as can be attested by Richard Skinner, who is conducting the McCarter Theater's straw-hat season at Princeton, N. J.

Normally a sleepy Jersey village in summer, this first war summer finds Princeton a boomberg. One of the students' chief diversions is the university radio station, WPRU, which operates over the college-generated light system in some mysterious fashion. Each opening night at the McCarter, a representative of the station turns up to interview a player after the premiere. By some strange chance, the best looking ingenue in the cast is always selected — no matter how grand the star of the occasion.

THE other night the theater's representative was looking high and low for the student correspondent of one of the New York dailies. He was trying to get him to file a yarn about the opening. After trying every dorm and store in town the searcher was about to call it a day when he came upon the missing scribe, nonchalantly sauntering out of the stage door . . . "Didn't you know?" asked the scribe, "I'm an extra. I was one of the guys behind the beards who carried a spear."

The management had another ticklish problem. They invited all the enlisted men to come as their guests, thinking soldiers from nearby Fort Dix and Camp Joyce Kilmer would take advantage of the offer. The Princeton lads, who are all enrolled in the ROTC, caught on and began wearing their uniforms when they came to the shows. It took a careful perusal of Army insignia before the boxoffice staff could tell the difference between the McCoy soldiers and the Princeton boys.

THOSE who have seen and heard the Deep River Boys will admit that the Ink Spots, great negro quartet, are in for some real competition. I caught the act at Camp Smith the other night, and their reception was the best I've witnessed since the war began. They have comedy and song. All are graduates of Hampden Institute, in Virginia. As yet they haven't had a single chance to appear on Broadway. But they will, brother, they will. You can get them around noon on week days over NBC.

Norman, a young man who practices "cartomancy," which is the reading of fortunes by cards, cheerfully admits that his art is the bunk. He read his own fortune the other night at the Revere Room, and learned that a tall dark man was soon to influence his life—said tall dark individual turning out to be the head of his draft board. Norman goes into the Army in a few weeks. He predicts a gloomy future for Mr. Hitler.

The present scale of pensions for Spanish-American war survivors is not inadequate, but since when have minority groups declined to ask for increases simply because they thought they already were being dealt with fairly? A Farmer's Diary

One Boy's Mother

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

A HIGH SCHOOL graduate, about 19, whom I have known for several years, met me on a city street. He appeared more confident—more reliable than I had ever believed possible. He was heavier, had matured physically. His conversation showed purposefulness and sincerity.

"I'm working in the city now," he said. "My dad moved onto a farm after mother died—more'n a year ago. He wanted me to quit school and go with him but I felt I couldn't go there, graduate, and earn my own way. So I got me a room, worked as usher in a theater after school and at night. Sometimes I was so sleepy I couldn't stay awake in class...some of the teachers knew why, and were kind to me.

"My mother wanted me to go through and graduate. On class day, I thought of her, and wished she was there—many other mothers were. I almost believed she knew, and was happy.

"I still try to do the things she told me—and as I get older I know her advice was the best any boy could have. She told me never to get too old, or too wise, to go to church. I've never missed a Sunday since she died. My room is across the street from a lovely city church. When I'm tired and lonely it does something to me to just sit at my window and look.

"When some of my friends cuss their mothers and are beastly, I tell 'em they don't know how fortunate they are. A home is the best thing that ever happened in America and any boy who is unfair to his parents loses something he will always regret. Mother often said that the ugliest things you think and say about others hurt you more'n it does them...I find it's a fine thing to live that way, but when you're in public work you can't always do it.

"I'm better off, keeping busy. So I have two jobs. When I'm off of one, I eat, change my clothes, and go to the other. It'd just kill me to sit around alone. When hard questions of what is right or wrong come up, I always ask myself what would mother say, if she was here. I wonder what happens to them who have no one to ask....I still can't believe my mother is away."

ASHLAND OPENS SCHOOL SEASON SEPTEMBER 8

8 Vacancies Exist in County Rural Schools as Term Nears Start.

ASHLAND—About eight vacancies still exist in teaching staffs of Ashland county schools which will open for the 1942-43 term on Sept. 8. Handicapped by the lack of teachers, especially in certain subjects, school boards have in some schools interchanged subjects to stretch teaching facilities.

There will be only one change in principals in county schools for the coming year. In Nankin rural Eugene Smith, principal of the school for the past five years, has resigned to take a position in Lorain county, and will be succeeded by Mrs. Edith Jelly, who has been a teacher in the Nankin school for the past seven years.

Continuing at this school will be Miss Hildreth Stauffer and Miss Elizabeth Klooz, with Mrs. Lois Ballou of Ashland as a new teacher in the first grade, succeeding Miss Marian Ekey.

Rush Rosenberry of Shelby will continue as teacher of music at the Nankin school and Montgomery rural, and will also have charge of music at the Jeromesville school where J. R. Steiger has resigned. One vacancy still remains in the Nankin school.

There are four new teachers at the Perrysville school and one vacancy remaining. New teachers are Walter McAuley, Mrs. Ruth Crumrine, Miss Grace McKeal, and Mrs. Rhea Cowan. Other members of the faculty are: H. M. Wiggins, superintendent; Miss Ruth Hoppins, Lowell Ruggles, Miss Genevieve Ankrum, Miss Pearl Smith, and Earl Blayney. The vacancy is in the music department of which Robert Carothers was instructor last year.

Thomas Lasley, former teacher in Union county schools, and Mrs. Virginia Pfeiffer of Ashland, a former teacher in the Ashland county schools, will be new teachers at Montgomery rural succeeding Jacob Seeler and Miss Margaret Snyder and completing the faculty at that school. Other teachers are: P. A. Carlisle, principal; Mrs. Hilda Carpenter, Miss Maxine Florence, Miss Marvene Hershey, Miss Frances Freer, Miss Monna Donahey, and Rosenberry.

Two changes in addition to music will be made in teachers at Jeromesville village where Mrs. Esther Goad will succeed Miss Mary Eyster and where no successor has yet been named to the position held last year by James Hall. Other teachers are: H. H. Geiger, superintendent; Noel Shaffer, Miss Kathryn Vaughn, G. V. Grauer, Miss Myrtle Ebert, Miss Ruth Jacobs, David Colville, Miss Lois Harding, Richard Atterholt, Miss Ethel Hartman, Miss Rena Feeman, Miss Ruth Moherman, and Rosenberry.

The music department at Hayesville rural still remains vacant. The teacher last year was Theodore Grafton. Two other vacancies have been filled, with Miss Catherine Darling succeeding Miss Evelyn Crick, and Mrs. Pauline McKinley succeeding Miss Anna Cleland. Other teachers are: W. J. Himes, superintendent; Charles Jolliff, Miss Mary Jane Lewis, Miss Ruth Katzenbarger, Miss Glendora Woods, Mrs. Yula Smith, Miss Portia Wooldridge, Mrs. Minnie King, and Earl Blayney.

Two vacancies still exist at Polk village and three new teachers have been employed. Former teachers returning are: C. G. A. Carlson, superintendent; Miss Margaret Pittenger and Mrs. Gertrude Haenel, while new teachers are Dennis Marlowe and Miss Elizabeth Patton.

All teachers have been employed for Ruggles rural where four new instructors will be on the faculty this year. With John Wohlgamuth as superintendent, last year's teachers returning are Mrs. Fredima Wengerd, Robert Hammett and Mrs. Alva Cannon, while Mrs. Louise Adams of Mansfield will replace Mrs. Lois Lycan, H. L. Bland of Holmesville and Mrs. Alice Ideman of Ashland will succeed J. R. Steiger and Richard King, and Miss Lois Wolfe of Columbus will teach home economics and commercial subjects, succeeding Miss Betty Shaw.

THOUSANDS HERE THRILLED By This Amazing New Kind Of Bread... "PATENTED FLAVOR" WONDER BREAD

Women Everywhere Are Quitting Old Kinds For It At The Rate Of 5,000 A Week Now

CHALK-WHITE
"REFINED" BREAD (UNENRICHED)
Bled chalk-white by refining, the flour used to make ordinary white bread is naturally deficient in vitamins and minerals. You can detect its inherent weakness by its chalk-white color and pallid flavor.
CREAM-WHITE
"PATENTED FLAVOR" NEW WONDER BREAD
Made by the Earle Patented Process, the flour in this new "Patented Flavor" Wonder Bread contains more natural vitamins and minerals than ever before. Prove it is better; see its cream color and richer flavor.
LOOK AT THE COLOR... LIKE CREAM
LOOK FOR THE PATENT NUMBERS HERE
IT'S SLO-BAKED WONDER BREAD
Only Wonder Bread has "PATENTED FLAVOR"
Because Only Wonder Bread Is Made This Way From Earle Patented Process Flour
(U.S. Pat. Nos. 2143306, 2232697, 2155219, 2232696)

Get New "Patented Flavor" Wonder Bread Today; Put On Your Table And Into Lunch Box

Takes The Place Of Any White Bread Deficient In Natural Flavor, Vitamins And Minerals Because It Contains More Natural Flavor, Wheat Vitamins And Minerals

AT LAST! At your grocer's today the new kind of bread you have heard so much about. The "patented flavor" bread which already has taken the place of ordinary kinds in over 540,000 American homes:

1. Because it brings more of the rich, natural flavor of wheat full-ripened in the sun than white bread robbed of Nature's bounty. Thus, is better for taste.
2. Because it contains more natural vitamins and minerals of wheat now than ever before thought possible.

You can see the difference at once. Gone is the chalk-white look of the ordinary baker's bread. Instead, this new "patented flavor" kind has the color of the cream on the top of the bottle of milk.

A Remarkable Discovery

Everybody knows the trouble with ordinary white bread. Made from flour bled white in refining to make a whiter loaf. Then Theodore Earle patented his discovery (U. S. Pat. Nos. 2143306, 2232697, 2155219, 2232696). And here is the secret of "patented flavor."

By removing the bad-tasting outer skin of the grain, you get this richer, better tasting loaf. A bread the color of cream; tender in texture and crust. And with more natural vitamins and minerals.

To obtain this amazing new "patented flavor" loaf—ask your grocer for the new Wonder Bread. And see for yourself why women everywhere are quitting ordinary white bread for this new kind at the rate of over 5,000 a week now.

A Great Thrill

Here's none of the flat, insipid flavor of the usual chalk-white kind. But refreshingly different! Like the taste of fresh fruit after canned. You'll say it's marvelous!

Then, too, "patented flavor" Wonder Bread is doubly fresh—fresh when you buy it and fresh when you eat it. Because slo-baked for lasting freshness—baked 13% longer than many ordinary kinds. Thus, better for table, better for lunch box.

Ask your grocer for the new "patented flavor" Wonder Bread—today sure. You'll be glad you did!

CHAPTER VII

In the few moments he'd been in that room he'd brought back nostalgic memories of her father, the deep richness of his voice, the gentle whimsical way he had with little Daphne.

Surely Frani must know that such a man wouldn't be interested, in the way she'd implied, in a "little number from South America." Surely Frani must know how such a man would hate a common quarrel.

But apparently Frani didn't know. For later that night she heard Frani's voice lifted again in dispute. She hadn't meant to be an eavesdropper. After she had put Daphne to bed she slipped on a sweater and went out into the yard for a look at the river and a breath of fresh air.

Passing under the window of the room where Frani had interviewed her that morning she heard Guy Dillingham asking, "What was the idea in putting Marcia and Paul's pictures together in a frame that way?"

"They're engaged, aren't they?" Frani answered crossly.

"Why, yes, but my dear—" He was amused now and Amy could understand why Frani might take offense, "Isn't it a little like framing a diploma?"

"You have to frame diplomas in order to convince some people that you have them," Frani said sharply. "Same with engagements. You have to flaunt them in some women's faces to keep them from poaching."

"You couldn't mean Miss Tudor." Guy's voice showed surprise.

"How quickly you catch on! But I don't think Paul would go too far with her. After all she hasn't a cent or she wouldn't be working here. And I think I know my own family."

"Frani!" Guy Dillingham said. And hearing his voice, Amy caught the overtones of pain and chagrin.

Hands to her hot cheeks she fled through the darkness. She couldn't stay in this place. She'd have to get away. But how?

That question brought her up sharply and she leaned against the trunk of a giant beech tree remembering—she hadn't a cent in the world and wouldn't have until she got her pay Saturday. And this was—what? Tuesday. She'd have to endure it. Anyway it was against her nature to yield to any set of circumstances without a fair trial.

The next morning she heard more about her employer from Margaret whom she was beginning to like. As the big woman straightened Daphne's rooms, dusting, polishing, moving furniture about as though it were no effort, Amy said something about the beauty of the river view.

"It's lovely," Margaret declared stoutly. "Everything's lovely here. And Mr. Dillingham deserves to have it like that. He's a good man. And a deep-thinking man too. He deserves a chance to be happy. I'm sorry for anyone that makes him mad."

She learned, inadvertently, that Guy Dillingham was one of the largest manufacturers of bracelets for wrist watches in the world, that he came of a fine old family, that he had built up his great fortune, that now he was working day and night on changes so that his factory might take on war orders.

Frani was out all day and Amy enjoyed giving Daphne her first French lesson. It was very informal. They played with Daphne's doll and Amy told Daphne about the little French girl who called her doll, "Ma poupee."

When her father came into the nursery that night, Daphne said proudly, "Voici ma poupee. Do you know what that means?"

"Semi," her father said, smiling delightedly. "This," he declared, as Daphne placed the frazzle-headed doll in his arms, "is my favorite granddaughter - - - Daphne frequently makes me kiss her good night."

"But I won't be grandfather to a whole zoo," he said as Daphne forced a Teddy bear and a Donald Duck upon him.

He didn't look like a grandfather to anything. He looked, with his shy, pleasant smile and that deep color in his cheeks, almost as young as Paul.

"Speaking of zoos, you must take Miss Tudor to the zoo and show all our favorite monkeys," he told Daphne.

Daphne capered gleefully. "Oh, the zoo! The zoo! Will you go, Daddy?"

"I wouldn't miss it for anything."

"We won't take Mother though."

The deep color spread up to his forehead. "I don't thing Mother'd care to go. But if she wants to—"

"She won't," Daphne assured him. "And oh we'll be so happy—you and Tudor and me!"

For three days Amy saw nothing of Paul. Daphne said her Uncle Paul had gone "way up the river to paint." Contradictorily she was glad that he was away yet hurt that he did not make any attempt to see her. She saw little of the family. Guy Dillingham appeared to be coming home from his office later than usual. Frani was absorbed with some rather noisy friends who seemed to fill the house when her husband was absent.

She did express her delight when Daphne greeted her with, "Bonjour, madame ma mere."

"Is her accent good?" she asked Amy.

"Almost like a native," Amy told her. "Her little tongue is so flexible I believe she could learn Russian!"

"I wish I had some knowledge of languages," Frani declared. "When I was in high school I took a whirl at French, but I don't like to do anything unless I can do it well, a little better than other people."

That, Amy thought, might be a key to Frani's discontent. She thought for a moment that she could like Frani—there was something of Daphne—and something of Paul even—in her.

Then Frani did a thing which increased her dislike to almost hatred and actually threw her into Paul's arms.

It was the day Daphne went to a birthday party — Amy's third day as a member of the Dillingham menage. Amy saw her leave, proudly bearing a gift wrapped in a dollar's worth of silver paper and satin ribbon. Then she went up to her room for her coat, intending to spend her afternoon off exploring a path that led from the garden gate across the ridge above the river.

Frani was entertaining a group of friends at bridge. Amy could hear the gabble of their conversation downstairs. But presently it seemed to grow louder, to surge up the stairway, to flow into the hallway.

Then there was a knock at her door. She had just taken her coat off the rack, but she put it back hastily, closed the closet and opened the door.

Without a sign of recognition Frani walked past her, followed by a group of women — flinty-faces, skinned-looking eyebrows, fire engine red finger-nails but like claws, coarse voices softened by affectation.

"Now this," Frani announced, "is the governess' room. You see, I've used the heavy old oak with Swedish motifs here just as I did in Daphne's suite. It's rather amusing, I think. Look—even the closet's lined in blue."

She opened Amy's closet door while Amy stood by with the hot blood drumming in her ears. She was glad she hadn't unpacked all her things. But sorry that one she had unpacked and hung up was the negligee her father had given her last Christmas in Paris. She didn't wear it often. She'd hung it up because it recalled the gay silly time they'd had buying it. Gold velvet it was, with a mammoth golden ostrich collar and a small tight belt of imitation turquoise.

"Oh-ho!" one of the women said as though she'd been reading a scandal sheet. But the others rushed to Amy's window to exclaim over the river view.

Then Marcia Fairbairne came in—cool, sweet, serene. Not as perfectly groomed as the others, but looking more like a human being in her spectator sports suit with her red gold hair curling against the brim of her lavender felt hat.

She stared puzzled at the group of women chattering by the window then at Amy standing alone. Her cheeks flushed.

She came forward, her hand extended. "Miss Tudor, I'm so glad to see you again."

"Mrs. Actling," she called to the woman who had exclaimed over Amy's negligee. "I want you to meet Miss Tudor."

The woman acknowledged the introduction with a smile that fawned upon Marcia, but ignored Amy. Then Frani turned and, seeing Marcia, her dark eyebrows drew together quickly. Then she too contrived a smile as Marcia introduced the other women.

"Come on, all of you," she ordered. "I want to show you Daphne's playroom."

When they had gone, leaving behind them the sickish sweet scent of a dozen different perfumes and cold creams, Marcia lingered. Her face was still flushed and Amy noted little pale gold freckles across the bridge of her nose. A sweet sincere person, Marcia, and so obviously eager to say just the right thing.

"I hope we'll see a lot of each other this winter," Marcia said shyly.

But when she too had left, Amy heard the harsh voice of Mrs. Actling. "More like a movie star than a maid." Then Frani's voice correcting her, "Not maid—governess."

Amy yanked her coat from the hanger and ran down the side stairway to the servant's entrance, out into the garden, along a garden path to the gate and smack into a man standing on the other side—Paul!

"Good lord! You seem to be going some place," he laughed. "And going there hard! I was hanging around hoping to get a glimpse of you."

"Like a policeman!" she said furiously.

"A policeman?" he repeated puzzled.

"Yes, a policeman always waits for the maid at the back gate, doesn't he?"

"Look here!" He grasped her shoulders, turning her about so that she faced him. "What's the matter with you? You don't sound like you at all."

"I don't feel like me! I feel—I feel—I can't even tell you how I feel! I won't stay here any longer. I told myself last night that I'd try it! But now I can't. I won't!"

"What's happened? Tell me."

But she was getting hold of herself now. After all Frani was his sister. "Oh, never mind. It's not a thing that improves with telling."

"I suppose it's something Frani's done. Don't talk about it if you don't want to. I know Frani. It's all my fault. I might have known it wouldn't work."

"Let's skip it," she said. "I want to walk and walk and walk."

"Might I walk with you?"

She nodded, still angry, and strode ahead of him, little hands clenched fiercely in her pockets, long soft hair blowing back over her shoulders.

"I'd like to show you my studio," he said, following her along the narrow path across the top of the ridge.

"Didn't know you had one," she said belligerently.

"Don't you remember what I told you once—when we were riding across the mountains? About a studio in the mountains with nothing but trees looking in at the windows?"

"Uhm hum." She was relaxing a little in spite of herself.

"Iv'e found it. Or something approaching it. It's not a log cabin. It's ridiculous pink cement. But wait until you see it. And this isn't exactly the Kentucky mountains. But look!"

* * *

He stopped, moving his arm in a wide gesture that took in the broad sweep of the river far below, shining and curved protectingly about the brown and gold Kentucky hills on the farther shore. A houseboat came around the bend, a tiny home afloat on the mighty stream.

"Look!" Amy cried. "There's smoke coming from the chimney. And I believe I see red geraniums in the windows."

"More likely red flannel underwear," he said. "But listen, girl. Remember how I said I wanted something close and intimate? A bit of typical Americana? I have it there. I've already done the river—begun it, that is. I'll show it to you when we get to the studio. Can you walk another half mile?"

"Of course." Her hands were no longer clenched. The wind whipped color into her cheeks. Her eyes were clear smiling amber as she plodded along beside Paul across the hilltop. The nasty little incident of an hour earlier seemed no longer worth remembering. She felt Olympian—the two of them—young and strong and sure, striding across the top of the world.

At length they came to a ravine. He explained: "This is the hollow. My studio's down there. Would you like to follow the path around the side of it or go down the steep end of the ravine? It's something like mountain climbing."

"I'll take the climbing," she said.

* * *

Now the Olympian feeling was gone. They were two mischievous children as they had been that night when they ran away from Miss Spires and Mr. McCloud in the little mountain town, laughing and calling to each other as they slithered down slippery zigzag paths and stopped to rest breathless in the small footholds made by the exposed roots of trees.

At the bottom he said, "There's a five-foot leap here. I'll jump, then you jump and I'll catch you."

He held out his arms, laughing, and she, laughing, leaped into them. He let her go, then looked down into her eyes, and gathered her to him. He held her close so that she felt the beating of his heart against her; slowly her arms went up and around his shoulders, until her fingers touched the back of his collar, then the crispnes of his hair. She lifted her lips to his.

They stood there silent for so long that a little brown rabbit hopped out from his hole under a ragged root, sat up on his haunches surveying them and, deciding that nothing so motionless could be dangerous, hopped past them with a great rattling of dry leaves.

His scurrying brought Amy back to reality, to the sound of the wind in the branches far above them, to the bright sunlight filtering through half bare branches—to memory.

She drew away from him. "Marcia," she whispered.

He passed his hand over his eyes as though he were trying to bring back something he had forgotten. Then he reached for her again saying gaily. "I love you."

"But Paul—" She hated to be like this. She wanted to go back to him. But she couldn't until she knew. "You're—aren't you engaged to Marcia?"

His arms dropped. "Yes...But I love you."

Love—that was all that really counted. An engagement wasn't binding like a marriage. If you cared enough you could break an engagement. You should. She waited for Paul to speak.

But Paul did not speak. He looked down at the ground, up the ravine, everywhere but at her.

Then he blurted out, "Marcia paid for my three years' study in Europe."

WILD OUTLINES TREATMENT FOR 2 COMMON ILLS

Health Commissioner Tells of Medical Approach, Urges Public Co-operation.

Discussing contagious and infectious diseases today, Dr. W. B. Wild, city-county health commissioner outlined procedure methods to prevent or treat tuberculosis and the so-called social diseases.

"There is no vaccine or serum for any of these," Wild explained, adding "and the treatment usually is costly and covers a long period of time.

"We know tuberculosis is not hereditary but can come only from exposure to a person with the specific germ. We know how the germs get into the lungs and the stages of development to produce active tuberculosis. The lesson to be learned often seems too simple to impress people with its importance.

"The veterinarians tuberculin-test cattle, find the infected animals, and these are sent to the slaughterhouse. Of course we cannot follow this course through with human beings but we can segregate them and send them to sanitariums. Proper control of the individual case and of spread in the community lies in the following:

1—Early diagnosis and case-finding by routine application of the tuberculin test; 2—Periodic re-checking of all persons found non-infected; 3—Frequent clinical and laboratory examinations, x-ray and flouroscopic examination of each person found infected; 4—Proper isolation and hospitalization of all persons having active tuberculosis until their condition is no longer infectious.

Richland county's program of combating venereal disease has been broadened and extended greatly during the last few years, Wild declared. Intelligent reasoning and knowledge accomplish far more than force in freeing the public of these long-tolerated "silent diseases," in the opinion of the commissioner.

He suggests a four-ply method of education to gain proper control as follows:

1—Stimulation of public interest to bring these out in the open and learn about them, including serological tests with all physical examinations;

2—Influencing individuals to avoid infections.

3—Aiding infected individuals to competent diagnosis and treatment.

4—Persuading patients to continue treatment until definitely pronounced cured by the physicians.

"As citizens of a democratic community," Wild declared, "we must assume our responsibility in a total community attack on the conditions which foster the manitenance and spread of these diseases in our own district."

Wild cited the practice of the armed forces in enlisting a great many men, regardless of the presence of a social disease, and then assigning the recruit to a detention camp for treatment, such functions being maintained as a part of nearly all large military reservations.

WAR WORKER WON'T SHAVE

BREMERTON, Wash. — (U.P.) — When a certain destroyer for the U. S. navy is launched at the Puget Sound navy yard — then, and not before, Shipfitter-helper Willis B. Chadwick will shave, even though his beard has turned out to be a mottled job, with red patches. But he has made a pledge and he intends to keep it.

WHEAT PLANTING TO REMAIN SAME

Richland Given Allotment of 24,000 Acres for '43 Under AAA Regulations.

Richland county farmers will be permitted to seed approximately the same wheat acreage this fall as in 1941 and still comply with AAA regulations.

New county quotas, which had been sent out to all farmers today from the AAA office, would retain the county's wheat crop for 1943 at slightly more than 24,000 acres.

About the only changes were in eliminating fractions of acres in individual allotments for next year, AAA officials said. That is, a farmer who harvested 15½ acres this year will be permitted to seed 16 acres this fall. One who harvested 15.4 acres this year would be limited to 15 acres.

National AAA headquarters has announced there will be another wheat marketing quota referendum next spring to determine whether restrictions shall be placed on the sale of grain by farmers.

Smart Co-Eds Pick New Fabric

By SUSAN BARDEN
International Illustrated News Writer.

Long before the lecture halls have opened for the fall semester, this year's feminine college crop has been directing enlightened thought to the subject of campus wardrobes.

Lots of collegians who have been in the habit of dashing into a shop a couple of days before they were due back at the Alma Mater are going to do some planning this season because of the scarcity of certain materials. Since there won't be as much wool as usual, they have got to find a substitute that will have the casual campus air and at the same time fill the bill for comfort and wearability.

One of the answers to the question is the new cordurella, a modern lightweight version of corduroy. This material is made of cotton so it conserves wool for the government, yet at the same time it supplies approximately as much warmth.

Tests have demonstrated that its heat retaining qualities are practically equivalent to those of woolens of the same weight.

College Clothes Must Be Sturdy.

College clothes naturally have to be sturdy enough to fit into classroom scenes, participate in outdoor activities, and travel away for week-ends. And this type of material is one that has shown that it is very long wearing.

The outfits in the three above photographs picture some uses to be made of this fabric.

The snug-fitted brown suit, (right), which can also be worn as a suit dress, is off for a higher education. It has a skirt with a front pleat and a coat with a front closing of self-covered buttons, a high neckline and perky pockets.

Also designed for a scholastic and social life is the neo-classic beige dress, (center). It is highlighted with pointed patch pockets and russet alligator-grained belt and buttons.

The swagger red loafer jacket (left) blithely teams up with numerous dresses and skirts, adding extra warmth and dash as it shuttles across the campus on cold days. It features bold patch pockets and precision tailoring.

GLEANERS' CLASS.

The Gleaners' class of the First Christian church had a steak fry recently at the home of Mrs. Floyd Gable, South Main street road. The time was spent socially. Plans for the September meeting will be announced later.

INSTALLATION, DINNER HELD BY TRI KAPPAS

Mrs. Robert Haag, Outgoing President, Turns Gavel Over to Mrs. Glynn Bethea; Meeting To Be September 14.

FORMAL installation of officers of Kappa Kappa Kappa sorority took place at the Fairview hotel last evening. Dinner was served at 8 o'clock at a long table attractively decorated in the sorority colors, blue and rose. The centerpiece was of fall flowers.

Mrs. Robert Haag, who has been president during the past year, conducted the installation services. Officers now in charge are Mrs. Glynn Bethea, president; Mrs. Alex Schwaner, vice president; Miss Monoka Spurgeon, secretary; Mrs. Obed Crownover, jr., treasurer; Mrs. Clifford Bennett, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Katie Batterson, historian; Mrs. Richard McGinty, social data; and Mrs. Paul Ammeter, chairman of the tax stamps committee.

Officers of the past year gave a short resume of their experiences. Mrs. Haag presented a membership card to each member as a farewell token. Toast to the new officers was given by Mrs. Schwaner. Mrs. Walter SaVene gave the toast to the out-going officers.

The next regular meeting of the sorority will be held Sept. 14 at the home of Mrs. Schwaner. Mrs. McGinty will be associate hostess.

Bishop Reunion Held Sunday At Mansfield Park

The annual reunion of the descendants of James and Elizabeth Bishop was held at South park pavilion on Sunday with an attendance of 70. After the dinner, a short business session was held and the following officers were elected for the coming year: president, Grover Bishop; vice president, Raymond Garverick; secretary-treasurer, Marilyn Bishop.

A collection was taken and added to last year's balance, making a total of $6.49 in the treasury. Contests were enjoyed and prizes were awarded to the winners. Two marriages and four births were reported. Three members of the family who have entered the army are Pvt. Burnell Bishop, Corp. Bus Bishop and Pvt. Peter Morris. As Private Morris is home on furlough, he was present for the reunion.

Plans were made to meet at the same place on the fourth Sunday in August, 1943.

GIVEN DINNER.

Mrs. Joseph Narring, Lincoln Heights, gave a six o'clock dinner in honor of her sister and nephew, Mrs. C. R. McKee and Joseph Scott. Both guests of honor received many gifts. The table was centered with a birthday cake and at each end of the table was a vase of garden flowers. Toast master was Marvin McKee.

Report Given On Convention By Legion Women

Mrs. Marie Castor, president of the American Legion auxiliary, conducted the meeting last evening at the Legion home. The meeting was opened with the advancement of colors, singing of the first verse to "Star Spangled Banner," and a pledge of allegiance to the flag. The standing committees' reports were then given.

It was voted to send money to the 40 et 8 of the American Legion to be used for playing cards for the men in service. Two delegates, Mrs. Castor and Mrs. Marie Dickson, who went to the state convention in Canton, Aug. 16-18, gave reports.

Some of the highlights of the report were that it was said the Mansfield unit is the fourth in size in Ohio. They described the impressive memorial service held and were told that 228 members of the Ohio auxiliary had died in the last year.

Mrs. Swing, recent past president, urged all auxiliary members to take part in war work and activities. This post also received a citation of merit. A further honor was given to this post at the convention by having Mrs. Walter Beckley, past department president, elected delegate to the national convention.

The program consisted of two songs, "Just a Little Bit of Ireland over Here," and "Keep a Silver Lining Shining," as sung by little Margaret Lemley. Forrest Cleland then showed colored movies on Mexico and gave a talk about them. Mexico is the auxiliary's study for the present. Miss Grace Bonnell was social chairman. Next meeting on Sept. 10 will be for election of officers.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)
By ADELE GARRISON

"I shall be very glad to transfer the responsibility to your shoulders," I told her, then went back to the room where I enjoyed so refreshing a nap.

But any notion of snatching more slumber was shattered when I met Dicky coming down the corridor. He was so plainly a messenger sent to me upon some urgent errand, that involuntarily I squared my shoulders to meet whatever task he was bringing me.

"Dad, and Ronald are downstairs," he said, "and rarely have I seen the Chief in such a wax. He wants to see you at once. Luckily, he's only just arrived, so come along down. Old Harry's already there."

He fairly rushed me down to the library where my father rose with Harry and Ronald at our entrance. Then my father came over to me.

Asks About Carolyn.

"Where is Carolyn?" he asked.

"She is talking to Lillian."

"How is she reacting? Is she tractable, or rebellious?"

I did not wish to answer this question fully before Ronald, or harrow further the sensibilities of Carolyn's distraught brother, so I hedged carefully.

"She appears to be all right," I said, "and she and Lillian are absorbed in their talk."

"I am leaving Ronald here while Carolyn stays," said my father, "Harry says he can put him up. With Harry and Miss Whitlock here, I do not think Lillian will need you—or will she?"

I knew his question, between the lines, ran "Will you arrange to see that Carolyn is kept from escaping while you are away?" and I gave him the assurance he expected.

Demands Haste.

"I know she will not," I said, and although he did not actually heave a sigh of relief, he conveyed that effect.

"Then," he said quickly, "I would like to have you and Ronald come back to the hotel with me now. Please make your farewells to Lillian and Carolyn and tell them I am in great haste."

"I'll be right back," I promised, then raced up the stairs where I found Miss Whitlock in the hall.

"You'll have to take over," I told her. "Carolyn's brother will stay here but neither he nor Mrs. Underwood has any idea of what that young woman is capable. She will first try cajolery on them. If that fails, she has innumerable other schemes. And she is very clever, very wily."

"Mr. Underwood knows all about her," I went on. "You can confide in him, and ask him for help. But until we take her away, we are counting on you to keep her safely here, even if you have to put her into a straitjacket."

"I have found that a most efficient device occasionally," she said with a grin.

I will not stop to say good-bye to either Mrs. Underwood or Carolyn," I said. "Please tell them my father sent for me and I had to go, but will be back."

"Let it be soon" she urged. Then I went back to the library with the assurance that Carolyn was in capable hands.

My father hurried Dicky and me out of the house and into one of his cars, after only the scantiest farewells to Harry and Ronald. As soon as we were in the car he began outlining my task.

"I want you to get hold of Mary at once," he said, "and tell her for me that she must drop anything she is doing and get hold of Stephen Redfield. She must make an engagement with him leaving Olina out this time, and cajole him into an expansive and talking mood.

"Have her come right over to your suite, and I will explain to her the thing for which I wish her to watch."

Knowing his usual taciturnity, I was agreeably surprised when he spoke again.

"We have just discovered that a state document—no matter from what department or file—is missing. It is of such value to certain nations that its price cannot be calculated."

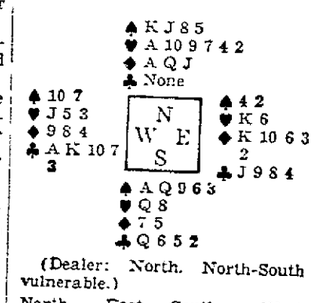
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay
"The Authority on Authorities"

PREFER ONE CHANCE

In planning the play of a hand, you may see two alternative moves to gain tricks, each of which is an even money or 50-50 chance. But, if one of those chances in case it succeeds, will produce only about one trick gain and the other can be worth several tricks, if it works, there is not much argument about which to choose. Furthermore, the situation may be such that, after trying one chance, you may still attempt the other, whereas trying them in reverse order may not be possible.



(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♥	Pass	1 ♠	2 ♣
3 ♣	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 ♦	Pass

After North had cue-bid the clubs of the opponents, his Blackwood 4-No Trumps asked South how many aces he held in the other three suits. So North knew the 5-Diamonds response to show one ace indicated it was not in clubs and therefore had to be the spade top. As it was, however, North gave his partner a tough playing job to do, one which he could not accomplish.

South ruffed the opening club K in dummy and led to the spade A, so he could try the diamond finesse, which lost. The club return was ruffed in dummy, the diamond A and Q cashed for a heart discard, the heart A played and a heart ruffed, then a third club ruffed and a second heart. South scored two high trumps then, but had to give up the club Q at the end, being down one.

Safer play was available — a lead toward the heart Q after trumps were out. South, after ruffing the opening club K, could have taken the spade A and K, then led a small heart, hoping East had the K, an even chance, which would have worked. East would not have dared return a diamond, so would have chosen a club for another ruff in dummy. Then a heart to the Q, a diamond to the A, refusing the finesse, the heart A dropping the J, and additional hearts for discard of all losers in his own hand, would have made the contract. Even if the heart play had failed, the diamond finesse could still have been tried, whereas the contrary order could not have been essayed.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, Aug. 26.

ALTHOUGH SUDDEN upsets and antagonisms or obstructions are notable in this day's astrological chart, yet there is a sign that the most tenacious obstacles and erratic precipitations of unusual situations may be vanquished or annihilated by a keen and laudable sense of duty, obligation, justice and fair play. Inspired by such noble efforts and the patience, fortitude and good judgment to go ahead against all impediments and pitfalls, success and satisfaction may crown all worthy endeavors.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of frustration and obstacles as well as sudden, surprising and singular circumstances. This may incite to sound, decisive and resolute action, mainly inspired by a sense of duty, obligation and the definite purpose of playing a just and worthy role in the trying ordeal. Patience, tact, kindliness and philosophic evaluation of the besetting and perhaps devastating course of events, may win out and bring gratification.

A child born on this day may encounter difficulties, frustrations and reversals in its affairs which may tax its patience, fortitude and good judgment. But its inherent soundness, justice and fairness as well as sense of duty and honesty will eventually win against obstacles.

Sport Podge by REX HESS

Seems Mansfield high school's gridiron Tygers took on a tartar when they booked Portsmouth as an addition to this fall's schedule. At least that's the idea you get after reading the Portsmouth Times.

A "big squad of husky lads" will be on hand for first practice call on Sept. 1, says the Portsmouth paper, which reports Peg Ellsesser has sent out letters to veterans of last spring's practice sessions, telling them how to get in condition for the autumn grind.

Ellsesser should have some good ideas on training plans. He's just returned from a conditioning and skull course at the Navy's pre-flight training school at Duke university.

* * *

Included in the squad called to practice by Ellsesser are 13 seniors, 18 juniors, 18 sophomores and seven freshmen, showing a squad well balanced as to age and experience and one that should carry on for seasons to come.

In addition, all incoming freshmen will be called for a football meeting on the first day of school, Sept. 8. The regular squad will meet for physical examination next Saturday.

* * *

If all the Portsmouth lads are as husky as big Bill Lewis, Tyger end who came from Portsmouth, the Tygers will really have something to worry about.

Note to tennis players in the two junior divisions of the News-Journal tournament: If you've played your first round matches and haven't seen your scores in the paper, please report your scores to the sports department of this paper first thing tomorrow morning. And if you haven't played, please hurry up and get it over with.

Other divisions are going right ahead toward championship play, but I have no idea who has played in boys' and girls' singles. And neither, probably, do your future opponents.

Don't keep us in the dark this way. Thanks.

THEATERS

De-Bunking Theme.

High pressure "success schools" come in for a de-bunking in "The Magnificent Dope," the Ohio attraction opening Wednesday with Henry Fonda, Don Ameche and Lynn Bari in the leading roles. Ameche plays the fast-talking operator of one of these institutions while Fonda has the part of a bucolic youth who listens to him. Eight easy lessons mean success in any language according to Ameche and Fonda falls for it. Edward Everett Horton and George Barbier are others in the cast.

Chaplin Re-Issue.

Charlie Chaplin's "The Gold Rush," a re-issue with a commentary by Chaplin himself, will be shown at the Madison for three days beginning Wednesday. A musical theme has also been woven into the picture for re-issue showings. A Michael Shane story, "The Man Who Wouldn't Die," featuring Lloyd Nolan shares the bill.

Career Comedy.

"Almost Married," the rollicking film story of a small-town singer's efforts to make good in the city, opening Wednesday at the Ritz, has Jane Frazee and Robert Paige in the leading roles. Eugene Pallette and Elizabeth Patterson are other players in the comedy that involves the singer with a wealthy curio-collecting bachelor. "Sunday Punch," the co-feature, has William Lundigan and Dan Dailey, jr., in a story dealing with the prize fight ring.

Two-Fisted Role.

Glenn Ford has a two-fisted role in "Adventures of Martin Eden," the Park attraction, based on Jack London's thriller. "Martin Eden." Ford plays a lusty sea-faring man with a touch of poetry in his soul and a burning hatred for human injustice. Claire Trevor, Evelyn Keyes and Stuart Erwin are among the players in the picture, much of which is filmed aboard ship. Margie Hart in "Lure of the Islands," is the co-attraction.

Cardinals Continue Battle

Not Giving Up in Race To Catch Brooklyn.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

THE St. Louis Cardinals may not have any more chance of catching the Brooklyn Dodgers than the slow train through Arkansas has of overtaking the Broadway Limited, but Billy Southworth has the throttle wide open.

* * *

His Redbirds tumbled the Dodgers 7-1 last night before an enthusiastic turnout of 25,-588 St. Louis fans who turned out for the first of a four-game series. It was the tenth triumph in 11 games for the Cardinals and kept alive their hope for the National league pennant.

Actually it did no great damage to the Dodgers, who breezed into the Mound City with a record of ten victories in their last dozen games and a 7½ game lead. All Brooklyn needs at St. Louis is an even split to make the September stretch serene. The Dodgers still have that chance

They also have the comfort of knowing that the closing days of the season will be spent in the pleasant company of the Phils and the Boston Braves, from whom Brooklyn has won 25 out of 33 games.

To tear a really gaping hole in the Dodgers' padding at the top of the league the Cardinals would have to sweep the series. And they tackled the strenuous assignment last night with a full head of steam.

* * *

They blasted Lefty Larry French and two successors for a dozen hits, pulled off a double steal that scored a run, and adequately suppressed the Dodgers on four-hit hurling by Southpaw Max Lanier. The little left-hander practically coasted to his 12th victory of the season.

* * *

French, winner of 13 games and beaten only once previously this season (also by the Cardinals) lasted just five frames.

This was the only game scheduled in either major league yesterday. The same rivals play another game tonight, then have twilight engagements the next two days.

Brews Boost League Lead

Increase Margin to Game And a Half in AA.

(By United Press)

Milwaukee increased its lead in the American Association last night in a game and a half margin over Kansas City and Columbus.

The Brewers tallied three runs in the fourth inning, four in the eighth and one in the ninth to defeat St. Paul 8 to 6 yesterday despite the Saints four-run final inning rally.

* * *

Columbus lost ground with a 5 to 4 defeat at the hands of Indianapolis, though the Redbirds threatened the Indians' lead with a four-run rally in the last two innings.

* * *

Kansas City kept pace by turning eight hits to 10 runs to defeat Minneapolis 10 to 4. The Blues scored four runs in the first and six runs in the fifth to maintain a 10-run lead until the seventh inning when Minneapolis scored their four runs.

Louisville tallied one run in the second inning, two in the eighth and one in the final frame to beat the Toledo Mudhens, 4 to 3.

Games today: Columbus at Indianapolis; Toledo at Louisville; Milwaukee at St. Paul; Kansas City at Minneapolis.

Ohio Colleges Report Big Turnover in Staffs.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ohio's collegiate football coaching picture had a flock of holes in it today. A survey showed that 10 of 1941's head grid mentors, and 27 assistants, would be among the missing when the curtain goes up in September.

Thirty of the 37 have gone to the armed services—eight to the army, one to the coast guard, and 21 to he navy. No replacements have been obtained for 13 of the absentees.

* * *

Baisler is Muskingum's new chief. Willard Pederson replaces Geltz at Mt. Union. Athletic Director Nelson Jones will coach the Findlay club; Stuart Holcomb replaces Wilton at Miami, and Carl (Ducky) Schroeder is Wittenberg's new grid boss. SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

NEW YORK—(Wide World)—What difference does it make if the Yankees are nine games in front and the Dodgers 6½, did you ever see such a race as they're having in the American Association?....The standings (as of yesterday) show only six games from first-place Milwaukee to seventh-place Indianapolis... Count out league-leading Newark, and the International is almost as close—five games from second to seventh...They're still hustling for a piece of the play-off change in several other minor leagues, too...Sidelight of a great athlete: When Babe Ruth was dressing after his first workout in years at the Yankee Stadium, Red Ruffing glanced over at the Bam, surrounded by admiring younger Yankees, and remarked, "Look at the guy; he still hangs up his uniform"...No extra work for the clubhouse boy when the Babe's around.

Al Milnar, winner of five against eight defeats, and Mel Harder, holding a 10-10 mark, were Manager Lou Boudreau's choices to oppose Ken Chase and Oscar Judd.

Wants Use Of School Buses

Congressman Opens Fight To Aid Athletics.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Schools considering abandoning their football schedules this year because of transportation problems were advised today by Rep. Walter (D-Pa) to stand pat—he sees a ray of hope.

Scores of smaller high schools, including several in his home district of Northampton and Carbon counties, Pennsylvania, were about to call off grid contests because of rulings against the use of buses to take students to athletic events, he said, adding:

I consulted Joseph B. Eastman, defense transportation coordinator, and was informed that schools which have buses of their own may carry their players to games.

* * *

"That makes quite a difference, and in my district the schools are changing their minds about dropping their road games."

"Football players make up our greatest pool of future air fighters and gunners, because they have developed the competitive spirit,' said Walter, himself a lieutenant commander in the Naval Reserve and a naval flyer in World War I.

"To wipe out this season in any considerable number of schools would be a severe blow to our armed forces, and I don't think it will be necessary on many cases in view of this new interpretation."

Eastman's ODT already has ruled that buses may not be chartered to carry either players or spectators to sports events, but Walter explains that does not apply to buses already owned by the schools.

* * *

The office of defense transportation concurred in Walter's statement that school-owned buses, as differentiated from chartered vehicles, could be used. OTD pointed out, however, that bus operators in applying for new equipment or replacements must obtain approval of the chief state school official, who may rule that such use of the vehicle added to its deterioration and was "out" for the reason.

Shooters Aim for Titles

587 Fire in Opening Events at Vandalia.

By FRITZ HOWELL

VANDALIA — (AP) — America's premier clay target crashers battled today for the men's, women's and professional North American clay target championships—200 clays at 16 yards—in the 43rd Grand American.

Unseasonable weather numbed trigger fingers yesterday as a field of 587 fired for eight titles, and a heavy wind hampered the scoring efforts in the 100-target events. A year ago 510 competed in opening day contests.

Marie K. Grant of Fort Dodge, Ia., defends the women's title today, with Russell Cott of Raytown, Mo., after the men's amateur title for the second time. Mrs. Grant's toughest opposition is expected from Lela Hall, the Strasburg, Mo., star who has won the laurels five times in the last seven years.

Mrs. Hall showed she still has her shooting eye by beating out a field of 15 other state queens for the "champion of champions" title with 98 of 100.

The men's "champion of champions" race, with 35 entrants, was due for decision today after four hot-shots romped through the 100-target event with perfect scores. They were Joe Moore of Kewanee, Ill., H. M. Schick of Lees Summit, Mo., Julius Petty of England, Ark., and Earl D. Hawkey of Hudson, Kansas.

Other champions named in yesterday's firing were:

Junior (19 years and under): J. M (Bubba) Jones, 15, of Shreveport, La., 97 of 100.

Sub-junior (15 years and under): Roy Foxworthy, 13, of Indianapolis, 92 of 100.

Father-son or father-daughter: C. J. Mos and daughter, Florence, Cincinnati, 195 of 200.

Husband-wife: (tied—shoot off today): Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Andrews, Spartnburg, S. C., and Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Rader, Jeffersonville, O., 188 of 200.

National sports writers: Fritz Howell, Ohio Associated Press sports editor, Columbus, 45 of 50, and 23 of 25 in shoot-off.

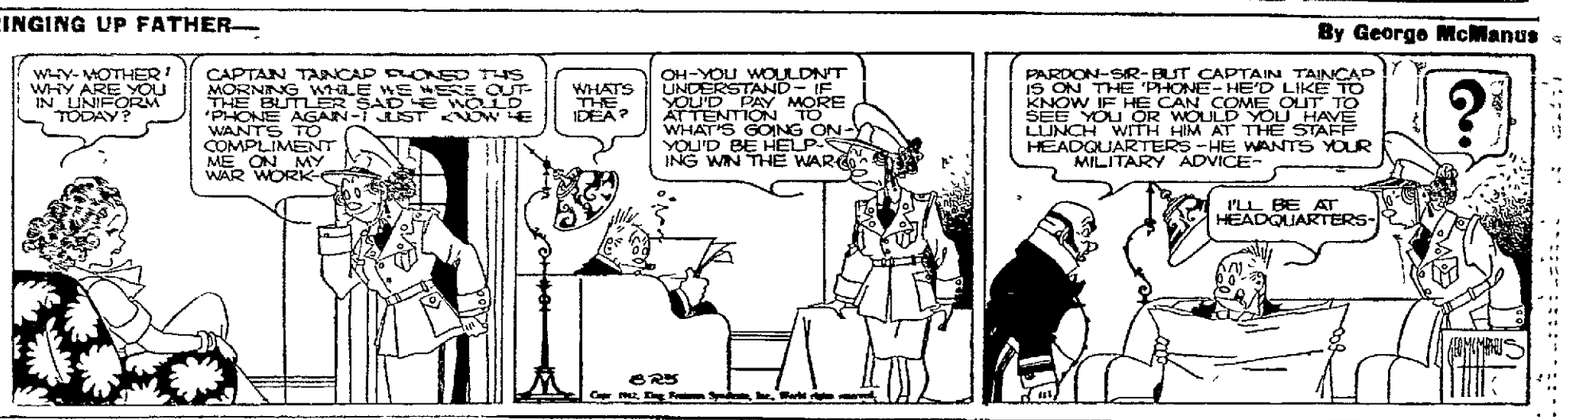
BRINGING UP FATHER— By George McManus



WHY-MOTHER! WHY ARE YOU IN UNIFORM TODAY?
CAPTAIN TAINCAP PHONED THIS MORNING WHILE WE WERE OUT—THE BUTLER SAID HE WOULD 'PHONE AGAIN—I JUST KNOW HE WANTS TO COMPLIMENT ME ON MY WAR WORK—
WHAT'S THE IDEA?
OH-YOU WOULDN'T UNDERSTAND—IF YOU'D PAY MORE ATTENTION TO WHAT'S GOING ON—YOU'D BE HELPING WIN THE WAR!
8-25
PARDON-SIR-BUT CAPTAIN TAINCAP IS ON THE 'PHONE—HE'D LIKE TO KNOW IF HE CAN COME OUT TO SEE YOU OR WOULD YOU HAVE LUNCH WITH HIM AT THE STAFF HEADQUARTERS—HE WANTS YOUR MILITARY ADVICE—
I'LL BE AT HEADQUARTERS—

THE GUMPS—Fortune Smiles On Andy At Last. By Gus Edson

YOU JUST WAIT IN HERE, ER-COMMANDER—

DOC BEAMISH! AM I GLAD TO SEE YOU! LISTEN, DOC—
8-25
THAT CHARACTER YOU FIGURED ON LOOKING UP ISN'T A NUT, GENERAL! I'VE KNOWN HIM FOR YEARS—THAT TROUPE HE REFERRED TO IS A GANG OF TRAVELING ACTORS—TROOP-OH! T-R-O-U-P-E! SAY, DOCTOR! THAT'S A REAL BREAK! WHERE ARE THEY?
FEELING BETTER NOW, MR. GUMP? BY THE WAY, I'VE SENT AN ESCORT TO CONDUCT YOUR FRIENDS HERE—THEY'LL ARRIVE SOON—

DICK TRACY—Previously Prepared Retreat. By Chester Gould

I RADIOED FOR ANOTHER SQUAD. THAT'S THEM.
BUT I DON'T THINK YOU'LL FIND TIGER LILLY AND HIS GANG AROUND. THEY SAID THEY WERE GOING TO BEAT IT.
WE'RE GOING TO LOOK THIS PLACE OVER JUST THE SAME.
MEANWHILE—
WELL, WE'RE HERE.
GOSH, BOSS, THIS LOOKS LIKE THE END OF THE WORLD.
BUT WE'LL BE SAFE I'M SURE OF THAT!
HM!
THIS IS THE LONELIEST SPOT IN THE NORTH WOODS. THREE TIMES BEFORE I'VE HID OUT FROM THE COPS HERE THEY JUST CAN'T GET UP.
WHAT DO YOU WANT US TO DO WITH THIS DEER YOU SHOT?

STOCK LEADERS JOGGING OVER UNEVEN RANGE

Department Store Sales Drop Another 6 Per Cent as Spending Lag Keeps on.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Leading stocks again jogged over a slightly uneven range in today's market proceedings.

Up a shade or unchanged, were Sears Roebuck, Pennsylvania, Standard Oil (NJ) Radio Corp., Bethlehem Steel and Chrysler. On the offside were U. S. Steel, General Motors, Great Northern, Anaconda, J. I. Case, United Aircraft and Goodrich.

Shares of retail companies came in for study in view of figures indicating continuance of the lag in public spending as compared with a year ago. A preliminary compilation of the federal reserve bank of New York placed department store sales in the metropolitan area for the week ended Aug. 22 at 6 per cent under the like 1941 week.

Some comfort was derived from the announcement of the WPB that iron and steel scrap aggregating 434,448 tons had been collected from automobile "grave yards" in July against 150,000 tons in the same month last year. Steel observers warned however that the scrap shortage still was a serious threat to mill operations.

SEWER RENTAL REBATE URGED

Mayor Proposes Abolition of Charge For Last Quarter; Cites Building Curb.

Stating that the city will be unable to carry on any extensive repair, extension or replacement program due to government priorities, Mayor Locke said, "I am recommending that the tax-payers themselves be permitted to keep the money which otherwise would be used by the city for routine sewage purposes."

Mayor Locke declared the rebates, or uncollected assessments, would total around $11,000 for the quarter for domestic consumers. No estimate is available of the commercial user rebate.

Last spring Councilman Fred Miller sponsored an ordinance which sets aside $6,000 annually from collections in excess of $42,000 to create a reserve fund for sewage plant replacement and repair. The ordinance fixes a $100,000 ceiling on this fund.

In his recommendation to Russell Porch, chairman of council's finance committee, Mayor Locke sets up that this reserve fund provision will not be affected.

Great Britain late yesterday was shot down.

United States flying fortresses, which have made such a brilliant record in flights over enemy-occupied territory in one week without the loss of a plane, attacked Letrait, French inland port near Rouen, in their fifth operation yesterday.

Three members of the crews of the 12 planes which took part were wounded, none seriously, in attacks by at least 40 Focke-Wulff-190 fighters, Germany's best.

Canadian pilots of the strong fighter protective force of the Royal Air Force, the Royal Canadian Air Force, the Polish Air Force and the American Army Air Force shot down two of the Focke Wulffs, and two Canadian fighters were lost in keeping the enemy planes away from the fortresses.

The result of the fighter protection was that all of the fortresses got through to their targets, dropped their bombs in the target area at high level, and got home safe. Shipyards of Letrait, an important inland port, were the center of attack.

FBI CALLED IN DOMINION FIRE

War Products of Mansfield Plant Are Imperiled By Mysterious Blaze.

tions inspection at the plant, FBI agents from the Cleveland area office were summoned.

Company officials this morning were enlisting a board of appraisers to determine the extent of loss. No finished munitions were affected, it is reported, and the flames were confined to the paint room excepting for one breakthrough into an unused storeroom.

Fog sprays were used by firemen to combat the naptha flames which were only spread by open hose dousings of water. Three lines were laid into the plant and fire crews remained at the scene until nearly 5 a. m. to guard against a further outbreak of flames.

According to fire department officials, this is the first serious blaze in any Mansfield industrial plant since the manufacturing processes of the city were converted generally to war production during the last year and a half.

No halt in munitions production operations was reported today. Except for the paint room, all other departments of the plant were running as usual, company officials said. Workmen this forenoon began clearing debris from the fire-swept paint room and it is anticipated this section will resume normal operations in a day or two.

Federal agents today began questioning the seven employes who were in the paint department when the fire flashed to determine if anyone had noticed any unusual situation or had noted the presence of an outsider. None of these employes is under suspicion, officers said.

Benjamin Shaffer, president, and other officials of the company are out of the city.
